Introduction

In France, they remembered their kings by nickname: Charles the Bald, Louis the Spider. In Britain, it was parliaments with the nicknames: The Addled Parliament, the Parliament of Bats.

If the WTA ever adopts the habit of nicknaming its seasons, 2001 will probably be the Year of Chaos. Three different #1 players — and the player that most people felt was the best player of the year was not one of them. A Slam winner who could win only one non-Slam title. Six different Slam finalists. Lesser titles scattered to the winds.

What actually happened in 2001? Who really deserved to be #1? Was the best player on hardcourts also the best player on clay? Grass? Indoors?

That's a large part of what this document attempts to analyse. It's an investigation of the top players (generally the top thirty) and their results. This includes doubles, and there is also an extensive section on WTA history.

As for who was #1? — That turned out to be very complicated. People in 2000 complained that Martina Hingis was #1 without winning a Slam title — but Hingis earned it by having the best overall year of any player on the Tour. She wasn't the best Slam player — but she was so overwhelmingly superior in non-Slams that she properly earned the ranking.

There was no such clear result this year, though we again had a #1 player who didn't win a Slam. Who didn't even reach a Slam final. Who didn't even play a match on clay. And yet, Lindsay Davenport was the #1 player by at least some measures other than the WTA's. In the course of this document, you'll see about twenty different rankings. They simply don't agree. Jennifer Capriati, Davenport, and Venus Williams all lead in certain categories and stumble in others — so much that even Hingis and Serena Williams, though is not #1 in any given ranking, passes each of them in one or another measure.

If we take what I regard as the three "best" rankings — adjusted winning percentage, surface-balanced divisor, and majors ranking — we still see a three-way split: Davenport was best in the first, Capriati in the second, Venus took top honours in the third. We might put it this way: All three had failings. Davenport didn't have the Slams or the clay. Capriati didn't have the titles (only three all told). Venus didn't have the events (she only played twelve, to seventeen for Capriati and Davenport).

So you'll have to make up your own minds. But this document will give you much of the information you need.

And more, because there is more to the WTA Tour than the #1 ranking. Did you know that there were three different players undefeated indoors this year? That every player in the Top Ten won at least three tournaments? That only five players were in the Top Ten at the beginning and end of the year, and only two had the same ranking. It's all here. I hope you enjoy reading it far more than I enjoyed compiling it....

NOTE: Every effort has been made to ensure the accuracy of the data in this document, but it's a lot of work; neither the author nor Tennis News can assume any responsibility for any errors or their interpretation.

2001 In Review: The Top Players

The Final Top Thirty

These are the players we'll be talking about most. For purposes of reference, here are the Final 2001 Top 30 as determined by the WTA. We note that, with the exception of Sugiyama, all of these women were in the Top 25 for at least part of the year.

10. Coetzer, Dementieva, Dokic, Kournikova, Martinez, Pierce, Sanchez-Vicario, Seles, Tauziat, S. Williams

The Complete Top Ten under the 1996 Ranking System

This list shows all players who would have been in the Top 10 under the 1996 ranking system (total points divided by tournaments, minimum fourteen), with the highest ranking achieved. (For the list of the final Top 10 under this system, see the section on Alternate Rankings.)

Capriati (2)
Clijsters (7)
Coetzer (10)
Davenport (2)
Dokic (10)
Hénin (8)
Hingis (1)
Huber (9)
Kournikova (8)
Martinez (7)
Mauresmo (4)
Pierce (5)
Sanchez-Vicario (8)
Seles (4)
Tauziat (10)
S. Williams (5)
V. Williams (1)

Note that there are seventeen Top Ten players under both systems, but not the same players: Dementieva qualified only under WTA rules, Huber only under the divisor. The other sixteen players appear on both lists.

Ranking Fluctuation

The table below shows how each of the top players ranked in the course of the year. The tennis season is divided into half-month sections, and players' rankings listed for the specified days. This is followed by the mean (average), median, and standard deviation (indicating how much a player's ranking varied in the course of the year. Thus Pierce, with a standard deviation of 52.2, showed the biggest fluctuation in the course of the year, while Davenport, with standard deviations of 0.7, showed the least variation).

Top Players Sorted by Median Ranking

This table lists players in order of their median ranking — that is, the ranking they spent as much of the year above as below. This indicates their typical standing in the course of the year. It should be noted that this figure takes 2000 and 2001 results equally into account, since rankings at the beginning of the year were based entirely on 2000 results, while 2001 results were the sole influence by the end of the year.

Short Summary: The Top Eighty

The following table shows the entire WTA Top Eighty, with brief summary of results. In the table, Final Rank is a player's year-end ranking (based on the November 12, 2001 rankings), Player is of course the player, Score is her Best 17 point total, # ofTrn is the number of tournaments she played, Best Rank is her highest ranking during the year 2001, Won/Lost is won/lost record (in the notes to this field, Wi=Withdrawal, WO=walkover. So Davenport, for instance, won 62 matches, lost nine, withdrew from one, and received two walkovers). Note that this figure includes only WTA main draws. Many players will have losses in wins and losses in qualifying and/or Challengers; the highest-ranked of these appears to be Farina Elia. Titles is the list of titles the player won, if any. We list the names (or abbreviations, for top players), then the number in parentheses. So Capriati's line, e.g., reads AO, Charl, RG (3). This means Capriati won three titles — Australian Open, Charleston, Roland Garros.

Final Rank	Player Name	Score	# of Trn	Best Rank	Won/Lost	Titles
1	Lindsay Davenport	4902	17	1	62-9 (+1Wi, 2WO)	PP, Soc, Eas, LA, Fil, Zu, Li (7)

Players not in the Top 80 with titles are: Zsofia Gubacsi (Casablanca), Angelique Widjaja (Bali)

* Hénin's and Montolio's totals includes a Challenger in late 2000. Other players, particularly those near the end of the list (e.g. Matevzic, who played her first career main draw matches this year) will also have Challengers, which means that their total events will not add up to their losses plus titles.

Tournament Results
Summary of Results for Top Players

The list below shows all the tournaments the top players played in 2001. For these purposes, any player who spent even one week of 2001 in the Top 25 is included; a handful of others have been listed because we thought they might be in the Top 25, and why delete them now?

To explain the data in the table: The numbers in parentheses list, first, the Tier of the tournament, second, how far the player went, and third, the number of wins achieved. This is followed by a list of top players beaten en route, with the player's rank at the time. For example, the second item in the entry for Daja Bedanova reads Australian Open (Slam, R16/S. Williams [6], 3) — Dementieva (11). This means that Bedanova's second tournament was the Australian Open. The "Slam" means that it was a Slam; if a Roman numeral is used, it refers to the tier of the event. R16/S. Williams means that Bedanova reached the Round of Sixteen, where she was beaten by Serena Williams, then ranked #6. The 3 indicates that she won three matches prior to that defeat. Players she defeated included Dementieva (then ranked #11). (Note: only wins over Top 35 players are listed.) If a description is in bold, it means the player won the title.

Tiers of Tournaments Played and Average Tier

(Note: The Slams and Munich are treated mathematically as "Tier 0," and Challengers as "Tier 8." That is, in taking the mean, we assign 0 points for playing a Slam or Munich, 1 point for a Tier I, 2 for a Tier II, etc. The lower the mean and median strength, the tougher one's schedule.)

	Slams Played	Munic Played	Tier I Played	Tier II Played	Tier III Played	Tier IV Played	Tier V Played	Chall Played	Total Played	Mean Str.	Median Str.
Davenport	3	1	4	9					17	1.3	II

Sanchez-Vicario	3	1	7	9	2	2			24	1.6	I
Huber	3	1	6	5	4	1			20	1.6	I/II
Coetzer	4	1	6	7	4				22	1.5	II
Tulyaganova	4		6	6	4	3	3		26	2.2	II
Schett	4		7	9	3	1	1		25	1.7	II
Raymond	4		6	6	4	1			21	1.6	II
Montolio	4		6	3	8	3	1	1	26	2.3	II/III
Grande	4		5	6	7	4	3		29	2.4	II
Nagyova	4		4	7	6		1	1	23	2.1	II

Thus the strongest (highest average tier) schedules on the tour was played Serena Williams (who really shouldn't be allowed to play such a top-heavy schedule), followed by Mauresmo, Venus, and Capriati. This is fairly typical; they were also among the leaders in past years. The lower-ranked players naturally tended to have weaker schedules, though we note with some astonishment how low are the figures for Hénin and Seles. In Hénin's case, it's partly because she was so low-ranked at the start of the year; in Seles's, it's because she played so many small events at the end of the year.

Tournament Results (Points Earned), Sorted from Most to Least

The table below sorts the results for the Top Twenty from most points per tournament to least. Thus, the row labelled "1" lists each player's best result, the row "2" lists the next-best, and so on. The seventeenth tournament (the last to count toward the WTA rankings) is highlighted.

Alternate Rankings

Knowing all the above, we can try calculating revised rankings. There are, of course, many ways of reshaping the ranking data. A typical way would be to use some of the WTA's earlier ranking systems.

Total Points Ranking (1997 Ranking System)

This ranking simply adds up the total points from all the tournaments a player played, whether the number of tournaments be 10 (for Serena Williams) or 31 (for Tatiana Panova). It is essentially the system used by the WTA in 1997 (except that there were minor differences in the way points were awarded at events)

Total Points Rank	Player	Total	Tournaments	WTA Rank
1	Davenport	4902	17	1
2	Capriati	4892	17	2

Best 17 does not differ much from Total Points; the Top Five are the same, and we don't see anyone move by as more than one position until we get to Anne Kremer, who gains six places because she had 28 events.

If Best 17 and Total Score rankings are almost identical, the same is not true when these systems are compared with the WTA's 1996 ranking system, Points per Tournament (minimum 14). Here the rankings are completely different. Scores are rounded to the nearest tenth of a point.

Points Per Tournament, Minimum 14 (1996 Ranking System: "The Divisor")

34	Grande	1051	29	36.2	24
35	Petrova	797	22	36.2	39

We see that this produces major changes; only one Top Ten player (Hingis) retains her WTA ranking. But this system has a problem: Players are expected to play at least 17 events — meaning they must play more weak events. The Williams Sisters blatantly ignore this, but all others try to play at least seventeen events. We should, at minimum, adjust the divisor accordingly. So we produce the "modern divisor": same as the above, but with a minimum divisor of 17, not 14.

Points Per Tournament, Minimum 17 (“Modernized Divisor”)

This is probably more fair than the preceding: It keeps the top four in the same order, but makes significant changes below that. It does not, however penalize injured players (e.g. Martinez, Rubin; also Anna Kournikova) nearly as severely as Best 17.

We follow this with the calculations based on the past and present ATP systems

Best 14

The WTA uses the "Best 17" ranking system — totalling the points earned in the seventeen tournaments where one earned the most points. For most of the Nineties, the ATP uses a related ranking system, "Best 14" — the total points earned in one's best fourteen events. If this system were applied to the WTA, the results would be as follows:

Best 14 Rank	Name	Best 14 Total	WTA Rank
1	Capriati	4801	2
2	Davenport	4545	1
3	V. Williams	4128	3
4	Hingis	3692	4
5	Clijsters	3086	5
6	S. Williams	3004	6
7	Hénin	2843	7
8	Mauresmo	2762	9
9	Dokic	2615	8
10	Seles	2306	10
11	Testud	1874	11
12	Tauziat	1750	13
13	Shaughnessy	1695	12
14	Farina Elia	1572	14
15	Maleeva	1487	16
16	Dementieva	1480	15
17	Sanchez-Vicario	1468	17
18	Huber	1419	18
19	Coetzer	1410	19
20	Tulyaganova	1155	20
21	Schett	1094	21
22	Raymond	1005	22
23	Montolio	992	23
24	Suarez	966	27
25	Nagyova	965	25
26	Grande	960	24
27	Bedanova	932	28
28	Tanasugarn	904	29
29	Serna	897	26
30	Torrens Valero	896	32

Overall, this isn't very different from Best 17; you have to go all the way down to #24 to see a player move more than one position. But the biggest change is at the very top: Capriati overtakes Davenport for the #1 ranking. This hardly seems fair — Capriati and Davenport played the same number of events, and Davenport, the more consistent player, earned more points overall. Shouldn't she be rewarded for that? This is the ultimate problem with best-however-many rankings: If the number of events is high, they reward players who play a lot; if the number is low; they reward a few big results over day-in-and-day-out consistency.

Slotted Best 18 (ATP Entry Rank)

This is the new men's "ranking" system. I put "ranking" in quotes because of several complications — first, the fact that it has two parts, much too easily confused. And second, there is the discontinuity — top players are expected to play Masters Series events, while lower-ranked players need not. There is no provision for injuries. All in all, it's a system in need of work.

The slotted system counts a player's results in Slams, Masters Series (the equivalent of the Tier I tournaments on the WTA tour), and a handful of other events. (Note, this is not quite the same as the men's system, because they only have eight players in their year-end event, and award points differently .) In the table below, "Required Points" refers to points earned in the Required Events (Slams, Tier I) "Optional Points" are what the players earned in their best other events.

Slotted Rank	WTA Rank	Player Name	Slam Points	Tier I Points	Munich Points	Optional Points	Total Slotted Pts

25	22	Raymond	120	233	0	527	880

The significance of the ranking system is shown by how many changes this system makes. In 2000, the changes were not as dramatic as this; 1999 would have been intermediate, with #3 and #4 changing places.

Total Wins

The list below shows how the top 25 fared in terms of wins (I also show losses for balance). The reason this deviates so far from the rankings is that some of these players played large numbers of low-tier (Tier III and Tier IV) tournaments. Since they faced low-level opposition, their wins, quite properly, do not count as much toward the rankings. Others simply were unwilling or unable to play many tournaments. Though their winning percentage was high (witness Seles and Serena Williams), their total wins were relatively low. Where two players have the same number of wins, I list the player with fewer losses first.

Note: As elsewhere, this list includes only official tour wins; exhibitions (including Fed Cup) are excluded. Also, walkovers are not calculated as wins or losses. It should be noted, too, that this list is not formally comprehensive — e.g. it omits Su-Wei Hsieh, who had a 2001 record on the order of 35-2 but played mostly satellite events. Only the Top 40 have been examined to compile this list. Finally, observe that the numbers here do not in all cases match those in the section on the Top Eighty. That section listed only main draw wins; this includes Challenger and Qualifying wins and losses as well

Winning Percentage

Based on the data on wins, we find the following order for win percentage (where there is a tie, the player with the higher number of wins is listed first, and unlike the above, we do not list ties; it is my opinion that having the same winning percentage while playing more matches is a greater accomplishment than winning fewer):

Rank	Name	Wins	Losses	Win%	WTA Rank
1	V. Williams	46	5	90.2%	3

The numbers for the Top Five all require some comment. Venus Williams tops the list, but her percentage is significantly changed by the walkover she granted Serena at Indian Wells. Davenport had both walkovers and withdrawals. Serena had two walkovers, one against Venus and one against Davenport. The rankings in this category are probably right, but the percentages probably don't mean as much. The lower-than-usual percentages (only one player with a 90% record, and that just barely; even more amazing, only two above 85%) are yet more evidence of how wide-open 2001 was.

Divisor Rankings, No Slam Bonus

In terms of strength of field, the Slams are no stronger than the Ericsson or Indian Wells — or even San Diego. But the Slams award double points — at the Ericsson, you earn 260 points for winning the tournament, and 100 points for beating the #1 player, while at a Slam, it's 520 and 200 points, respectively. The following table calculates divisor rankings if this Slam Bonus (or Slam Bias, as some call it) is eliminated.

The "Majors Ranking"

It is an unfortunate fact that tennis uses the word "major" as a synonym for "Slam." It's unfortunate because it leaves us with no good word for "the best events." The Slams are, of course, among the strongest events on the tour — but there are half a dozen other events which are quite competitive in terms of field strength. And many of them aren't even Tier I events; the Tier II tournaments at Sydney, San Diego, and Filderstadt have traditionally been stronger than the average Tier I.

Which gives us the basis for another ranking, the "Majors Ranking." We take the ten best events, and count results only in those events. In 2001, our list is Sydney, Australian Open, Indian Wells, Ericsson, Roland Garros, Wimbledon, San Diego, U. S. Open, Filderstadt, and Munich. (The list does vary from year to year; Philadelphia was stronger than Indian Wells last year, for instance, but this is our 2001 list.) Since all these events are strong, we don't need quality points. And we don't care about early losses. We'll count only semifinals and better: 1 point for a semifinal, 3 for a final, 5 for a win.

On the whole WTA Tour, only twelve players earned any Majors points at all. It will be evident that the "Majors Ranking" is not useful as an overall ranking system — but it is a good measure of the accomplishments we might count toward Player of the Year. The list of players with at least one Majors point is as follows (we also show the points earned at each event):

Major Rank	WTA Rank	Player	Major Points	Sydney	AO	IW	Eric	RG	Wim	SD	USO	Fil	Mun
1	3	V. Williams	22		1	1	5		5	5	5
2	2	Capriati	15		5		3	5	1		1
3T	1	Davenport	14	3	1				1	1		5	3
3T	4	Hingis	14	5	3	1	1	1		1	1	1
5	6	S. Williams	13			5					3		5
6T	5	Clijsters	7			3		3					1
6T	7	Hénin	7					1	3			3
8	10	Seles	3							3
9	11	Testud	2									1	1
10T	15	Dementieva	1				1
10T	35	Martinez	1	1
10T	9	Mauresmo	1	1

If we look at 2000, we must add Philadelphia (substituting for Filderstadt, which in 2000 had its field depleted by the Olympics) and the Canadian Open for Indian Wells. Interestingly, we see more players (sixteen) with scores; the rankings were as follows: 1. Hingis (24), 2. Davenport (22), 3. V. Williams (15), 4. Seles (7), 5. Martinez (6), 6T. Mauresmo (5), Pierce (5), 8. S. Williams (4), 9. Kournikova (3), 10T. Dementieva, Sanchez-Vicario (2), 12T. Capriati, Dokic, Frazier, Tauziat, Testud (1). We note with interest that, in 2000, this exactly follows the Top Five in the WTA rankings and gives us nine of the top ten — completely unlike 2001.

In 1999, Filderstadt substitutes for the Canadian Open, and we again had sixteen players: 1. Hingis (31), 2. Davenport (23), 3. V. Williams (11), 4. Graf (10), 5. S. Williams (8), 6T. Mauresmo, Pierce (3), 8T. Seles, Tauziat (2), 10T. Coetzer, Huber, Lucic, Sanchez-Vicario, Schett, Stevenson, Testud. This again corresponds well with the Top Five (it probably would have been the Top Five had Graf quit in mid-year and been taken off the rankings). Thus we find 2001 to have been a most exceptional year both in the paucity of players with Major scores and in the lack of correspondence between Major scores and rankings.

Total Round Points

Consists of the total round points which a player has earned in tournaments in the last year. Note: All a player's tournaments are included here, not just her Best 17. In general, a player who does better in this ranking than in the WTA rankings is one who is failing to beat top players, and is attaining ranking by proceeding through easy matches. A player who stands lower in this ranking than the WTA ranking is one who perhaps has bad losses but who also probably has beaten a number of higher-ranked players.

We include this because the ATP, in its folly, has ceased to reckon points for quality.

Round Points Per Tournament

This ranking measures, in effect, how far a player typically advanced in a tournament, regardless of opposition.

Rank	Name	Rnd Pts per Trn	WTA Rank
1	V. Williams	202.4	3
2	S. Williams	182.9	6
3	Davenport	178.3	1

24	Montolio	33.2	23
25	Krasnoroutskaya	31.2	34
26	Tulyaganova	29.8	20

If, here as elsewhere, we require a minimum of 14 events, we get major changes in the Top Ten:

Rank	Name	Rnd Pts per Trn	WTA Rank
1	Davenport	178.3	1
2	V. Williams	173.5	3
3	Capriati	173.2	2

Quality Points Per Tournament ("Future Potential Ranking")

The reverse of the above, this calculates the difficulty of the opposition a player has overcome. For players outside the Top Six, it is a good measure of how they stack up against other players, and how likely they are to produce upsets. For the Top Six, it is rather less meaningful, because the different levels of quality point awards for the top players (that is, the fact that a win over #1 is worth much more than a win over #4) obscures their actual results. It will be noted that this list contains several players who are well outside the Top Thirty in the WTA lists (Krasnoroutskaya, Hantuchova; in addition, Rubin and Kournikova fall just below the Top 25), and others who, though in the Top Thirty, still climb dramatically (Bedanova, Suarez).

Rank	Name	Quality per Trn	WTA Rank
1	V. Williams	141.6	3
2	S. Williams	117.5	6
3	Capriati	114.5	2
4	Davenport	110.1	1

13	Huber	26.1	18
14	Shaughnessy	25.9	12
15	Bedanova	22.9	28
16	Dementieva	22.5	15
17	Maleeva	22.1	16

23	Coetzer	18.6	19
24	Hantuchova	16.5	38
25	Nagyova	16.0	25

If, again, we require a minimum of fourteen events, the Williams Sisters suffer their usual fate: Venus remains #1, but Capriati is #2, Davenport #3, and Serena #4. Increase the minimum to sixteen, and Capriati is #1.

Quality/Round Points Equalized: 2Q+R Per Tournament

Calculated by doubling total quality points, adding round points, and dividing the sum by tournaments. The effect of this is to make, very roughly, half of the typical player's points come from quality and half from round points. This is, in the author's opinion, about the best way to assess players' actual performances based solely on WTA ranking data with no manipulation based on winning percentage or surface balance..

Rank	Name	2Q+R per Trn	WTA Rank
1	V. Williams	485.6	3
2	S. Williams	417.9	6
3	Capriati	402.3	2
4	Davenport	398.4	1
5	Hingis	293.7	4

20	Suarez	80.8	27
21	Martinez	80.6	35
22	Krasnoroutskaya	70.9	34
23	Bedanova	69.8	28
24	Raymond	68.1	22
25	Schett	65.6	21
26	Tulyaganova	60.5	20
27	Kournikova	60.1	74
28	Nagyova	59.5	25
29	Hantuchova	59.2	38
30	Tanasugarn	55.5	29

Once again, Bedanova, Kournikova, and Hantuchova rise.

Applying the Minimum 14 Events rule again costs the Williams Sisters: Venus remains #1, but Serena falls to #4. Increasing the minimum to 15 makes Capriati #1.

Consistency-Rewarded Rankings

Logarithmic Points Award

The WTA's Best 18 ranking cares nothing for consistency — your best results count, and nothing else. The old WTA divisor ranking took consistency more into account — but big results (e.g. from Slams) still biased the result. The Consistency-Rewarded Rankings give the greatest reward to consistent players. Under this system, it's better to make two semifinals than to win one event and lose first round in another (the reverse is true under the WTA rankings, even though reaching two semifinals requires at least as many wins). If good results help, bad results hurt. The method is as follows: One takes the natural log — in mathematical terms, ln() — of each weekly score, takes the arithmetic mean (i.e. divide by the number of events; as with the divisor, we set a minimum of fourteen), then take the antilog, e^x or exp(x). Under this system, a player who is absolutely consistent, producing the same score at every event, will get the same score as under the divisor. A less-consistent player will get a lower score — the less consistent, the lower the score.

A consistency-punishing ranking is, of course, also possible — but is functionally equivalent to just ranking players according to their single highest score.

Ranking	Player	Consistency Score	WTA Rank
1	Davenport	260.2	1
2	Hingis	153.1	4
3	Capriati	148.3	2
4	Mauresmo	85.0	9
5	V. Williams	81.5	3
6	Hénin	59.9	7
7	Clijsters	58.1	5
8	Seles	56.3	10
9	S. Williams	47.1	6
10	Testud	42.4	11
11	Dokic	38.7	8
12	Huber	32.8	18
13	Shaughnessy	32.5	12
14	Raymond	28.7	22
15	Farina Elia	27.7	14
16	Dementieva	27.5	15
17	Coetzer	24.0	19
18	Tauziat	20.7	13
19	Suarez	20.7	27
20	Sanchez-Vicario	20.3	17
21	Montolio	19.4	23
22	Maleeva	17.6	16
23	Martinez	16.3	35
24	Schett	14.7	21
25	Nagyova	14.7	25

If we remove the Minimum 14 requirement, then Serena Williams rises to #2 with 220.0; Venus Williams is #3, 169.6; Seles is #7, 76.8.

Worst 14

A simpler, though less accurate, way of measuring consistency is to simply take a player's worst fourteen results. Instead of paying off on good results at the top, this pays off on a lack of bad results. To keep the playing field level, players who play fewer than fourteen events lose events out of their fourteen until the total is correct. So, for instance, Serena Williams played ten events. That's four less than fourteen. She therefore loses her four best events for underplaying.

We will only list the top fifteen under this system, which we offer mostly for demonstration purposes. (Though we would ask the real question, why is Best 14/Best 17 any better than Worst 14/17? Neither one counts all results!)

Worst 14 Rank	Player	Score	WTA Rank
1	Davenport	3588	1
2	Capriati	2454	2
3	Seles	2306	10
4	V. Williams	2266	3
5	Hingis	2225	4
6	Mauresmo	1939	9
7	Clijsters	912	5
8	Martinez	853	35
9	S. Williams	844	6
10	Hénin	815	7
11	Suarez	589	27
12	Huber	561	18
13	Dokic	473	8
14	Testud	462	11
15	Tauziat	445	13

Middle Half

Another variation on the theme of consistency is to count half your results — but not the best half, the middle half. So if you play twelve events, we count the middle six, omitting the best three and the worst three. If your number of events is not divisible by four, we adjust appropriately. So, e.g., if you have seventeen events, half of that is 8.5. We take the seven middle events (i. e. #6-#12), and 75% of the two around that (i.e. #5 and #13). Applying this formula, we get the following Top 20:

Middle Half Rank	Player	Score	WTA Rank
1	Davenport	2480.0	1
2	Hingis	1764.5	4
3	Capriati	1754.3	2
4	V. Williams	1721.0	3
5	Clijsters	1408.0	5
6	S. Williams	1285.5	6
7	Hénin	1205.0	7
8	Mauresmo	1204.0	9
9	Dokic	1173.0	8
10	Seles	1144.0	10
11	Testud	998.0	11
12	Farina Elia	800.0	14
13	Shaughnessy	741.5	12
14	Tauziat	726.5	13
15	Huber	646.0	18
16	Dementieva	590.0	15
17	Coetzer	580.5	19
18	Sanchez-Vicario	543.0	17
19	Raymond	518.8	22
20	Maleeva	461.8	16

We observe that Davenport was on top in all three of these consistency-rewarding rankings; clearly, she was the most consistent top player on the Tour. But we should note that she didn't play a single match on clay, which is her worst surface.

Idealized Ranking Systems

Idealized Rankings/Proposal 1: Surface-Modified Divisor (Minimum 16)

In examining the various ranking systems used (and not used) by the Tours, one noticed that each has strengths and weaknesses. The current ATP Tour system has the advantage of enforcing surface balance, but it generally ignores smaller tournaments and has no reward for beating top players. The WTA Tour system has the advantage of encouraging players to play regularly (any good result is likely to increase a player's ranking total) but also encourages overplaying, has no surface balance, and renders losses meaningless.

Based on consideration, it seems to me that the following are the key features of an ideal ranking system:

1. Both wins and losses should count.
2. There should be strong rewards for quality; winning a tournament with a weak field should have relatively little value
3. There should be a minimum required number of tournaments, and incentives for playing more than the minimum should be reduced (to prevent injury) but not entirely eliminated
4. Surfaces should be balanced — players should not be allowed to "clean up" by playing more than half their events on a particular surface.
5. The Slam Bias should be reduced relative to the stronger tournaments such as the Ericsson.

I'll outline two proposals. The first is closer to the current WTA system:

- The system is point-and-divisor based: You earn a certain number of points, and divide them by a number of tournaments. This is probably not the best mathematical model, but it is (relatively) simple.
- The minimum divisor should be 16 (in doubles, perhaps 12). This is larger than the divisor of 14 the WTA used in 1996, but smaller than the Best 18 used from 1998 to 2000 or the Best 17 used in 2001.
- The Slam Bonus should be reduced from 2 to 1.5
- Quality points should be multiplied by 1.5 (Note that this, combined with the preceding point, means that quality points at Slams will be multiplied by 2.5.)
- The current WTA Round Point table may be retained
- There should be a minimum number of events on each surface: Six on hardcourts, three indoors (reduced from four in 2000 because of the shortening of the indoor season), three on clay, one on grass. Additional events may be played on any surface. If, however, you fail to play the minimum on any given surface, your divisor will be adjusted accordingly. Example: A player plays sixteen events, but only two on clay. She was supposed to play three on clay. The difference, one, is added to her divisor; she is treated as if she had played seventeen events.
- If one plays beyond the minimum of sixteen, your divisor is reduced by one third of a tournament for each additional tournament played. So, e.g., if you play seventeen tournaments, your divisor is 16.67; if you play 19, it is 18, etc..

The following table shows the result of this calculation for the WTA Top 30. The first column, "Rank," is the player's rank under this system. "Player" is the player involved. "# of Tourn" is the number of events the player actually played this year. "Qual Pts, Round Pts, and Slam Pts" are actual quality points, round points, and points earned in Slams. "Penalty Tourns" is the number of extra tournaments assessed for surface imbalance. "Adjusted points" is the calculated points total — equal to round points plus half of quality points minus one fourth of Slam Points. "Adjust. # Tourn" is the adjusted tournaments played — either 16 (if you played only sixteen events) or the number of tournaments plus penalty tournaments minus bonus tournaments. Score is what you get when you divide Adjusted Points by Adjusted # of Tournaments — the whole point of the exercise. WTA Rnk is the player's WTA rank. And so, without further ado,

Note: Some may object to all the modifications to the total points earned (“adjusted points”) while still approving of the Adjusted Tournaments mechanism. This turns out to make surprisingly little difference; the Top Four are the same (though we note an effective tie between Hingis and Venus) and the Top Ten only slightly altered: 1. Capriati (293), 2. Davenport (249), 3. V. Williams (229), 4. Hingis (228), 5. Clijsters (165), 6. Mauresmo (163), 7. Hénin (152), 8. S. Williams (150), 9. Dokic (127), 10. Seles (109), and no one else had a score over 100.

Idealized Rankings/Proposal 2 — Adjusted Won/Lost

The previous ranking system was based on the current WTA point table. Many of our other proposals have also been based on this. But there is nothing magic about the points system. We could also use a won/lost system.

Except — a player who plays weak events may earn a much higher winning percentage than a better player who plays stronger events. Henrieta Nagyova has eight career titles because she plays a lot of Tier IV tournaments. Anna Kournikova has none, in part, because she plays mostly Tier II and up. Kournikova is the better player, but she doesn't have the titles, or the winning percentage, to prove it.

So if we are to base our system on winning percentage, we must somehow adjust for tournament strength.

And we also need to account for wins over top players.

And we need to encourage players to play more, within reason.

We can do all that. To accomplish the first, we simply diddle with the values of wins: If we define a win at a Tier I or Tier II as being "one standard win," then a win at a Slam might be 1.1 SWs (for this purpose, we'll count the year-end championship as a Slam), and a win at a Tier III only .8, and a win at a Tier IV or V a mere .6.

To account for wins over top players, we assign bonus wins. In our system, a top four player gets you an extra .6 wins. Beating a player ranked #5-#10 is worth .4. Beating #11-#20 gets you .2. And a win over #21-#35 is worth .1.

To encourage players to play more, we do two things: First, we require you to play sixteen events, and add losses until you do. And second — and this is the key part — we reduce losses exponentially. Instead of calculating raw wins and losses, we take losses to the .8 power. What this means is that if two players have the same winning percentage, but one has played more, the one who has played more will have a slightly higher adjusted winning percentage. Not much — losses still count! But enough to make it worth playing more if it doesn't drag your results down. Note: We will count withdrawals as losses in this system, but walkovers do not count as wins.

We only calculate the Top Thirty, because this ranking is work and would require significant reprogramming by the WTA staff to use as "the" ranking system. The columns in the table are as follows:

Rnk: Player's rank under this system. Player Name: Just what it says. #Trn: The number of tournaments the player played. Slam W, L: Wins and losses in Slams. Tier I/II W, L: Wins and losses in Tier I and Tier II tournaments. Tier III W, L: Wins and losses in Tier III events. Tier IV+ W, L: Wins and losses in Tier IV, V, and Challenger events. Adj. Wins: Adjusted winning total based on the formula abova (i.e. a Slam win counts as 1.1, etc.) Bon Wins: Bonus wins as a result of victories over top players. Pen Loss: Penalty losses assessed for not playing the full 16 events. Tot Wins: Total wins as calculated, i.e. Adjusted wins plus Bonus Wins. Adj Los: Adjusted losses as calculated, i.e. total actual losses plus penalty losses raised to the .8 power. Adj Wi%: Adjusted winning percentage: Tot Wins divided by the quantity total wins plus adj. losses, expressed as a percent. The maximum is of course 100% (possible only if you play at least sixteen events and never lose a match), the minimum 0%

And so, without further ado, the actual numbers:

Adjusted Winning Percentage, No Bonuses

Some may object to the application of bonus wins, or to the reduction of losses. We can still calculate this ranking without that factor — strict wins and losses, adjusted for tournament strength. This produces a noticeably different list:

Percentage of Possible Points Earned

Tournaments differ in their "richness." A win at a Slam, for instance, is worth twice as much as a win in an equivalent round of a Tier I. A player who plays mostly "rich" tournaments, such as Slams and Tier I events, will therefore earn more points than a player who has the same number of wins in lesser tournaments. We can control for this by comparing a player's actual score with the expected results if one wins each level of tournament.

For these purposes, we must define values for each of the various tournament types. For this exercise, I have used the following values:

- Slam: 870 (520 round points + 350 quality points = 7 rounds * 25 pts/round *2 slam bonus)
- Munich Championship: 590 (390 round points + 200 qual points = 4 rounds * 50 pts/round)
- 96 draw [Tier I] — Ericsson, Indian Wells: 440 (260 round points + 180 qual points = 6 rounds * 30 pts/round)
- 56-Draw Tier I (=Charleston, Berlin, Rome, Canadian Open): 410 (260 round points + 150 qual points = 5 rounds * 30 pts/round)
- 28-Draw Tier I (=Pan Pacific, Zurich, Moscow): 388 (260 round points + 128 qual points = 4 rounds * 32 pts/round)
- Tier II: 320 (200 round points + 120 qual points = 4 rounds * 30 pts/round)
- Tier III: 243 (155 round points + 88 qual points = 4 rounds * 22 pts/round)
- Tier IV: 200 (140 round points for Tier IV + 60 qual points = 5 rounds * 12 pts/round)
- Tier IV: 130 (80 round points for Tier V + 50 qual points = 5 rounds * 10 pts/round)

Note that other point assignments may be used, to favour those who play more higher- or lower-tier tournaments. The above is an approximation, based on the examination of several tournament fields: This is what one could typically expect to earn at such an event. Not all tournament winners would earn this precise amount (Capriati, for instance, earned more for her Slam wins than Venus, because she were able to beat more top players. It is, of course, possible to calculate the maximum number of points a player could earn for any given tournament — but this is actually an unfair gauge, because chances are that a particular player will not play all her highest-round opponents. And this is not under the player's own control.)

Based on these numbers, we can calculate an approximate figure for the number of points a player could have earned based on her schedule. This is the "Possible Points" field. The "Actual Points" is what the player actually earned in these events (note that this does not match a player's WTA ranking total, because all events count). The column after that, "Percent," shows the percent of her possible points a player earned. The final column, "average richness," is simply the possible points divided by the number of tournaments. This shows how strong a player's schedule is. Venus Williams, for instance, played only twelve tournaments — but they included four Slams, which are obviously "rich." Serena Williams played few, but very high-tier, events. This gave her the opportunity to earn a lot of points in a relatively small number of tournaments.

The key figure, therefore, is "percent" — this is the calculation which shows how well a player lived up to expectations. In this category Venus is the leader, with 65% earned. Which is very good, but a dramatic drop from the 80% she earned last year. Venus is followed by the usual suspects: Davenport, Capriati, Serena, Hingis, and Seles, with only the first three earning as many as half their possible points. On the other hand, we find ten players (Capriati, Clijsters, Davenport, Dokic, Hénin, Hingis, Mauresmo, Seles, Serena, Venus) who earned at least 25% of their possible points — a sharp increase from seven such players last year. The chaos on the Tour is clearly evident in this figure.

Head to Head/Results against Top Players

The Top 20 Head to Head

The table below shows how the Top 20 fared against each other in 2001. For completeness, the Top 27 are shown on the vertical axis, although only the Top 20 can be listed across the top for space reasons.

Reading the Table: For space reasons, the names of the Top 20 players have been abbreviated in the column headings. Scores are meant to be read across the rows. So, e.g., if you look down the column headed DAVENPO (i.e. Davenport) and the row labelled Capriati, you will see the notation "1–2" This means that Davenport and Capriati played three times (1+2=3), with Capriati winning one and Davenport two.

Wins Over Top Players

Matches Played/Won against the (Final) Top Twenty

This table summarizes how players did against the players who would consistitute the final Top Twenty. (Note that, for the players ranked in the Top Twenty, the total number of opponents they could face is 19.) The final column,% of wins against Top 20, calculates the fraction of a player's wins earned against the Top Twenty — a measure of the difficulty one faced to earn those wins.

Here we see dramatic changes from 2000. Venus Williams is obviously the best player in these categories, with Davenport second, Serena and Capriati about tied for third, and Hingis rounding out the Top Five. But Venus's numbers are close to last year's, and Davenport's rather worse — and neither comes close to Hingis's numbers. Hingis played every Top Twenty player, beat all but won, and earned 60% of her 77 wins against Top Twenty players. This is further evidence of the chaos on the Tour in 2001.

Won/Lost Versus the Top Players (Based on Rankings at the Time of the Match)

The following table shows each player's won/lost record against the Top 10, against the Second 10 (#11-#20), and against the Top 20 as a whole, based on the rankings at the time. (The next previous table gives statistics based on the final Top 20.) Won/Lost Versus the Top Players (Based on Final Rankings)

The following table shows each player's won/lost record against the Top 10, against the Second 10 (#11-#20), and against the Top 20 as a whole, based on final rankings. Note: This is not the same as the players' wins over Top 10/Top 20 players, given in the previous table. What is shown here is the player's record against the women who ended the year in the Top 10/Top 20. At the time of the matches, some of these women will not have been at their final ranks. On the other hand, it could be argued that this is a better measure of success against top players — a player who ends 2000 at #7 (e.g. Hénin) had a better 2000 than a player who began the year at #7 but ended it outside the Top Twenty (Pierce), and a win against the player with the higher final rank should therefore mean more.

The player with the best record in each category is shown in bold.

Statistics/Rankings Based on Head-to-Head Numbers

Based on these numbers, we can offer a number of statistics/rankings. For instance:

Total Wins over Top Ten Players

Based on the Top Ten at the Time:

1. Davenport (17)
2. V. Williams (14)
3. Capriati (10)
4. Mauresmo (8)
5. Hingis (7)
5. S. Williams (7)
7. Seles (5)
8. Shaughnessy (4)
9. Clijsters (3)
9. Dokic (3)
9. Hénin (3)

Based on the Final Top Ten:

1. Davenport (17)
2. V. Williams (15)
3. Capriati (14)
4. Seles (9)
4. S. Williams (9)
6. Hingis (7)
7. Clijsters (5)
8. Mauresmo (4)
8. Testud (4)
10. Hénin (3)
10. Shaughnessy (3)

Winning Percentage against Top Ten Players

Based on the Top Ten at the Time:

1. V. Williams (93%)
2. Davenport (71%)
3. Mauresmo (62%)
4. Seles (56%)
5. Capriati (50%)
5. S. Williams (50%)
7. Hingis (41%)
8. Suarez (33%)
9. Tulyaganova (29%)
10. Dementieva (25%)
10. Frazier (25%)
10. Hénin (25%)
10. Huber (25%)

Based on the Final Top Ten:

1. V. Williams (88%)
2. Davenport (68%)
3. Seles (60%)
4. Capriati (58%)
5. S. Williams (56%)
6. Tulyaganova (40%)
7. Mauresmo (40%)
8. Hingis (37%)
9. Clijsters (33%)
10. Montolio (25%)

The above list does not, of course, include the handful of players who beat a Top Ten player in their only encounter.

How They Earned Their Points

The following tables evaluate the manner in which players earn points, breaking them up, e.g., by points earned on each surface, points earned from quality versus round points, points earned in Slams....

3	V. Williams	4128	2264	54.8%	1864	45.2%

The Top 25 collectively earned 57459 points in 2001. 16,402 of these, or 28.6%, were earned at Slams.

The mean of the fraction of points earned in the Slams is 24.5% (that is, this is the average of the players' fractions). The median is Dementieva's 19.0%.

30	Sugiyama	920	316	604	34.3%	65.7%

Generally speaking, the higher the fraction of points one earns from quality, the better one is at pulling off “upsets.” This is especially true of lower-ranked players; a player like Hingis, who was #1 for most of the year, has somewhat fewer quality points available, as she could not defeat a #1 player at any of the slams, could only play #2 in a final (by which time either player could have lost), etc.

For Comparison: The Top 25 earned an actual total of 57,439 points (the total of their Best 17 scores is slightly lower). 20,362 of these, or 35.4%, came from quality. The median quality percentage for the Top 25 is 34.3% (earned by Shaughnessy); the arithmetic mean (average) is also 34.3%. Schett’s 41.6% of points from quality is the leader— but nearly one third of these points come from one win over Venus Williams. Venus herself is second — but the mpst amazing score is posted by Bedanova (nearly 50% of points from quality!), who is not Top 25 but who looks likely to be a huge threat in future years.

Percentage of Points Earned on Each Surface

The first four numbers in this table should be fairly self-explanatory. The last columns, RMS, are perhaps less clear. This is an attempt to assess a player's balance. RMS, for Root Mean Square, measures the player's distance from the mean. The smaller the RMS value, the more "typical" a player is. For Reference: For the Top 25 as a whole, 45.4% of all points were earned on hardcourts, 22.9% on clay, 10.1% on grass, and 21.5% indoors. (As might be expected, this represents a slight increase in clay points from last year and a significant drop in indoor points.) Note: Due to round-off, some percentages will not add up to 100.

6	S. Williams	70%	5%	8%	17%	0.31
3	V. Williams	68%	8%	22%	3%	0.35

Thus Clijsters, whose RMS score is .03, is closest to the norm, with Shaughnessy second; the most absurdly unbalanced player is Montolio, followed by Maleeva, Seles, and Suarez (the latter two being injured).

Consistency

We often speak of a player's "consistency," but the term does not really have a clear definition. We can offer some models, however.

Standard Deviation of Scores by Tournament

One measure of a player's consistency is the standard deviation of a player's results over the tournaments she plays. The following list expresses a player's consistency by dividing the standard deviation of her score by the mean score. In mathematical parlance, if the player's scores are s_1, s_2, … s_n, then the number given here is given by the formula (shown here in two forms):

$$\frac{\text{STDDEV}(s_1, s_2, \ldots s_n)}{\text{MEAN}(s_1, s_2, \ldots s_n)} \qquad \frac{\sigma(s_1, s_2, \ldots s_n)}{\mu(s_1, s_2, \ldots s_n)}$$

Thus (for the mathematicians out there), this is not actually the standard deviation; it has been normalized by dividing by the mean. Note: This is not a ranking system; it is a measure of consistency. A player who loses in the second round of every tournament is more consistent (consistently bad) than a player who wins half of her tournaments and loses early in the other half — but the player who wins the tournaments will have, and probably deserve, a higher ranking. In the list below, the lower the score, the more consistent the player is. I have not "ranked" the players, lest this be confused with a ranking scheme, but they are listed in order from least to most consistent by the "standard deviation" measure.

Early-Round Losses

Another way of measuring consistency is how rarely one suffers early-round losses. The following table shows how many first-round (or, correctly, opening-round) losses each of the top players had, followed by other early-round losses (defined, arbitrarily, as cases where the player earned 55 or fewer points in the tournament; this is based on the 54 points awarded for a first-round loss in the year-end championships). For my convenience, this list is alphabetical. Note: First round losses at the Chase Championships are not included as first-round losses; being worth 54 points (and being suffered at a very high-level event), they have been listed as early losses. Players who lost in the first round at the Chase are marked with an asterisk (so you may transfer the results if you like); those who did not play at the Chase are marked "(x)"

Name	WTA Rank	Tournaments	1R Losses	Other Early Losses

Best and Worst "Worst Losses"

The list below shows the ten worst losses for Top 25 players (i.e. the ten players who lost to the players with the very worst rankings), and also the ten with the least severe "worst losses." This is followed by the name and ranking (both ranking at the time and ranking as of the end of 2001) of the player to whom she lost.

Worst "Worst Loss"	Best "Worst Loss"
1. Tulyaganova (L. Huber, then #294, ended #180)	1. S. Williams (Seles, then #10, ended #10)
2. Hénin (Razzano, then #217, ended #72)	2. Davenport (Capriati, then #14, ended #2)
3. Tauziat (Schnitzer, then #182, ended #140)	3. V. Williams (Schett, then #25, ended #21)
4. Dokic (Kostanic, then #169. ended #133)	4. Mauresmo (Kandarr, then #56, ended #71)
5. Farina Elia (Mikaelian, then #167, ended #78)	5. Capriati (Kuti Kis, then #59, ended #80)
6. Coetzer (Schwartz, then #150, ended #89)	6. Seles (de los Rios, then #72, ended #51)
7. Testud (Craybas, then #145, ended #93)	7. Maleeva (Kandarr, then #73, ended #71)
8. Montolio (M. J. Martinez, then #145, ended #92)	8. Raymond (Glass, then #79, ended #105)
9. Nagyova (Ad. Serra-Zanetti, then #137, ended #83)	9. Hingis (Ruano Pascual, then #83, ended #56)
10. Schett (Sfar, then #136, ended #82)	10. Sanchez-Vicario (Krasnoroutskaya, then #94)

Fraction of Points Earned in Biggest Win

In general, the lower this number, the more consistent a player has been, as she did not use one freak result to significantly change her result.

The table shows the point value of the player's biggest win, what percentage of her points this represents, what her score would have been without this win, where she would have stood in the rankings without that win, and what the win was. Players who would have retained their rankings even without their biggest wins are marked in italics. Note: A "big win" does not constitute the result that took a player deepest into a tournament, but the result that was worth the most points. In the column labelled "Big Win," it is assumed that the player won the tournament listed unless this is followed by the round in which the player lost (e.g. "F"=final, "SF"= semifinal, "QF"=Quarterfinal).

* Excludes wins in exhibition events (Hopman Cup, Fed Cup) but includes results in 2000. If both are included, Hingis had the longest streak of the year, of 18 (though no fewer than three players — Seles, Venus Williams, and Serena Williams — ended 2001 with long active winning streaks). If both are excluded, Hingis still has two ten-match streaks in 2001, but her longest streak is 12: Doha W (4), Dubai W (4), Indian Wells SF (4).

† Active winning streak

§ Tulyaganova also had a four round losing streak starting the end of 2000: Pattaya Qualifying, Pattaya 1R (as a Lucky Loser), Hobart 1R, Australian Open 1R

List of Longest Winning Streaks

The following list shows all winning streaks of ten or more matches, in descending order, including the tournaments involved and the surfaces on which they were achieved.

Number of Wins	Player	Tournaments and Results	Surfaces

- Active streak as of the end of 2001.

† Venus Williams went 15 matches without a loss, counting four wins at Indian Wells prior to this streak. As, however, she allowed a walkover at Indian Wells, she only won eleven consecutive scheduled matches.

Number of Significant Results

For our purposes, a “significant result” is one which earns a player at least 100 points. The following table shows the number of significant results earned by the Top 25. (The figure in the “100+ Points” column is the number of the player’s tournaments in which she earned 100+ points; similarly in the “200+ Points” column.) The final column shows what percentage of a player’s events earned a significant score (greater than 100 points)

Points Per Quarter

For those who want trends, we can also determine how well players did in each part of the year. In the lists which follow, quarters are reckoned based on when a tournament ends. So, e.g., Wimbledon began in June but ended in July; its points are counted toward the July total. Players are ranked in order of points per tournament. A player in italics is one with too few tournaments in the quarter for the result to be considered meaningful. In a few places I have listed players outside the Top 10 for the quarter who had a high per-tournament score. Note that in a handful of instances these lists include players not in the Top 20.

First Quarter

(Constituting the period from the beginning of the year to Indian Wells)

Rank	Player	Points	Tournaments	Per Tournament
1	Capriati	1319	4	329.8
2	Hingis	1892	6	315.3
3	Davenport	1446	5	289.2
4	Mauresmo	956	4	239.0
5	V. Williams	687	3	229.0
6	S. Williams	684	3	228.0
7	Huber	384	3	128.0
8	Clijsters	501	4	125.3
9	Seles	598	5	119.6
10	Henin	681	6	113.5
11	Maleeva	664	6	110.7
12	Kournikova	422	4	105.5
13	Coetzer	504	5	100.8
14	Suarez	565	6	94.2
15	Shaughnessy	549	7	78.4

Second Quarter

(Constituting the period from the Ericsson to Eastbourne)

Rank	Player	Points	Tournaments	Per Tournament
1	Capriati	1937	5	387.4
2	Mauresmo	1202	5	240.4

12	Farina Elia	317	4	79.3

Most Consistent over Four Quarters

The data in the previous section allows us to calculate another consistency ranking, based on who had the best results from quarter to quarter. All told, 21 different players ended in the Top Twelve in at least one quarter. In the list below, I have added up the player's per-quarter score for each of the four quarters. Lowest is best, i.e. most consistent. Players not in the Top 10 in any given quarter are assigned an arbitrary value of 14. (This means, obviously, that the maximum possible score is 56.) Injuries being what they are, this is a long way from perfect (e.g. Seles didn't really play in quarter 2, and Venus Williams didn't play at all in quarter 4), but it may provide an indication.

Rank	Name	WTA Rank	Consistency Score
1	Capriati	2	12

There is another difficulty, in the form of under-represented players. Martinez played only one tournament (Wimbledon) in the third quarter, Serena only one (Munich) in the fourth, etc. This can produce inflated results. To control that, we recalculate as follows: If a player has no more than two tournaments in the first three quarters, or has only one in the fourth, we average her score with 14 and recalculate. This affects only three players: Davenport (two tournaments in quarter 2), Serena Williams (two in quarter 2, one in quarter 4), and Martinez (one in quarter three). Davenport is not affected; she remains #2. Serena, however, falls from #3 to #5, and Martinez falls to #17.

Slam Results

From the standpoint of difficulty, the Slams are overrated. Slam results, e.g., are worth twice as much as the results of Tier I events, even though Tier I events are played in a shorter time against a tougher field (to win the Canadian Open, a player must win five or six matches in seven days, with every opponent probably in the Top Fifty; to win the U. S. Open requires seven matches in no less than twelve days, with probably at least two opponents outside the Top Fifty). Still, they are the events people remember, and so deserve some separate consideration. The following summarizes the top players' slam results. The column, "Total Opponent Rank" adds up the rankings of one's opponents. The next column divides this by the number of matches played. The lower this number, the tougher the average opponent was (note: Players ranked outside the Top 100 have been calculated as "100"). It is not properly a scheme for ranking; it simply calculated how tough, overall, the players' draw was.

Surface Rankings

Most ratings to this point have been "overall" ratings, regardless of surface. However, players do most definitely have preferred surfaces. We may therefore compute "surface rankings." The following tables show how the Top 25 did on each surface. Some other players have been added when their results warrant it. Results are listed in order of points per tournament on each surface.

It is effectively certain that some players outside the Top 25 have exceeded some of the lower Top 25 players on certain surfaces (especially grass). I have noted these where I have been aware of them, but have not checked this for all players.

Adjusted Points Per Tournament on Grass

A blatant difficulty with grass is that so many players play only Wimbledon. This seriously biases their results, because Slams are so point-heavy. A player who wins Eastbourne and reaches the Wimbledon semifinal will probably wind up with a lower score than a player who plays only Wimbledon and reaches the semifinal (this happened in 2001: Davenport won Eastbourne and reached the Wimbledon semifinal, while Capriati reached the Wimbledon semifinal without playing any other grass events. Capriati had the better per-event score. Indeed, Capriati outscored Justine Hénin, who reached the Wimbledon final and won 's-Hertogenbosch!). Yet surely the first player has at least as much right to be considered a top grass player! To attempt to compensate for this, we produce an adjusted grass ranking, setting a minimum divisor of 1.7. This reduces the bias for those who play only Wimbledon, while still making it more important than other grass results. Using this adjusted ranking gives us the following:

Grass Rank	Player Name	Surface Points	Tourn on Surface	Adjusted Points/Tourn	WTA Rank

Best and Worst Results Indoors

The following tables list a player's best and worst results on this surface. Of these, the worst result may be the better measure of ability — a player who avoids bad losses is at least more consistent than one with a mixture of good and bad results.

* Represents a first-round loss at Munich

† Played only one indoor event

All other Top 25 players, including Bedanova, Clijsters, Coetzer, Déchy, Dementieva, Dokic, Farina Elia, Frazier, Hénin, Huber, Kournikova, Likhovtseva, Maleeva, Martinez, Mauresmo, Montolio, Nagyova, Pierce, Raymond, Sanchez-Vicario, Schett, Schnyder, Serna, Shaughnessy, Suarez, Sugiyama, Tauziat, and Tulyaganova, had at least one opening-round loss indoors.

Tanasugarn did not play indoors.

All-Surface Players

The above us to produce a sort of a pseudo-ranking for "best all-surface player." For this we add up a player's ranking on all four surfaces based on points per tournament. (Note: Because of the shortness of the grass season, grass scores have been divided in half, rounding up, and a maximum value of 9 has been used. For all other surfaces, a maximum of 16 has been used. Also, the adjusted grass scores have been used) Note that this is not a measure of who is better on all surfaces; it measures who has been an all-surface player this year. (We should note that, while this statistic has had meaning in the past, in both 2000 and 2001 it has been rendered relatively useless by injuries) Players with the maximum score, of 57 have not been listed.

2	Capriati	17	2
3T	Clijsters	21	5
3T	V. Williams	21	3
5	Hingis	23	4

	Raymond	55	22
	Kournikova	56	74
	Likhovtseva	56	36
	Serna	56	26

We note at once the presence of Serena Williams at the top of the list. It should be recalled that Serena played exactly one tournament each on grass, clay, and indoors. On grass, we compensated. On clay and indoors, we did not. Had we required the reasonable minimum of three events on each surface (required not just for surface balance but to offset the extra values of the events she played), Serena would have been #6 indoors and below #16 on clay, which would have moved her to a total of 27 and the #8 spot. There is little real question that Capriati is the most balanced player this year, with Clijsters and Venus next. (Compare the figures for points earned on each surface.)

Tournament Wins by Surface

Here are the number of tournaments each player won on the various surfaces. As elsewhere, tournaments are divided into Major (Tier II and up; note that this does not mean "Slam," which is how some use the term) and Minor (Tier III and below). The final column lists the number of surfaces on which a player won tournaments.

This information is easily summarized, since it was a very weak year in terms of balance. No player had a surface sweep. Venus Williams and Lindsay Davenport and Jelena Dokic won on three surfaces. We could argue, since the surface Dokic missed was grass, that she was the most balanced player.

For additional information on results by surface, see the section on Percentage of Points Earned on Each Surface.

Total Tour Matches Played by Top Players

The following table shows how the Top 25, and certain other busy players, ranked in total matches played. Note that this does not correlate closely with ranking or with tournaments played; Testud is tops because she plays a lot and wins fairly often, Hingis is #4 because she plays moderately often and wins a lot (though she has fallen dramatically — she ended last year with 87, and hit 99 for a time in 2001), and Panova #10 because she doesn't win much but plays a ton. Note that only WTA main draw and qualifying matches are counted — Nagyova, e.g., played a challenger and won five matches, but these are not included.

The final columns show how a player did against her schedule. "Possible matches" is the number of matches the player scheduled (that is, the number she would have played had she won every match leading up to the final. So a Slam would represent seven possible matches, a Tier I between four and seven, depending on the event and whether one is seeded or not, a Tier V would represent five possible matches, etc.) The "% of possible" shows what fraction of these matches the player actually played.

Total Tour Events Played by the Top 150

The following table sorts the Top 150 (as of November 12, 2001) based on events played in the past year. All players who have played that many events are listed, along with their rankings (in parentheses). Top 25 players are shown in bold. The second column shows how many players played each number of events.

All told, the Top 150 played 3434 events.

The Strongest Tournaments

Theoretically, all tournaments of the same tier are of equal difficulty. In reality, it's not even close. Tournaments like Filderstadt and San Diego are so strong that, in some years, Top Ten players can go unseeded, while Paris and Bahia didn't feature a single Top Five player.

In general, we can assume that all Slams and the Chase Championships are at maximum strength; with minor exceptions, everyone who can play will play. This is not true of Tier I and Tier II tournaments (other than the Ericsson). Unfortunately, there is no simple way of "rating" tournaments; it is not the sort of statistic the WTA calculates. The sections below offer three proposals, each with strengths and weaknesses (weaknesses derived both from the systems themselves and from the fact that they are based on WTA rankings).

Tournament Strength Based on the Four Top Players Present

Proposal #1: This is a two-part ranking, strength and depth. For the strenth, take the total rankings of the top four players present. Add to this the scores of the top two present. (That is, count the top two twice and the #3 and #4 players once.) This gives an indication of just how tough things are when "the going gets tough": it shows what you can expect to be up against in the semifinal and final rounds. (So, for example, the top four players at Sydney in 2001 were Hingis, ranked #1; Davenport, ranked #2; Seles, ranked #4; and Martinez, ranked #5. So the total "value" of this tournament is 1+1+2+2+4+5=15.) The lower this number (the minimum possible value is 13), the stronger the tournament

To calculate the depth, we look at the top three seeds and the bottom three seeds (or, correctly, the top three players and the players whose rankings would entitle them to the last three seeds based on the current rankings). Sum the values for the bottom three, then subtract the sum of the value for the top three, and divide by three (if the tournament has eight seeds) or by six (if it has sixteen seeds). The smaller this number (the minimum is five), the deeper the tournament, as the difference between top and bottom seeds is smallest. Again taking Sydney 2001, the top seeds were ranked 1, 2, and 4; the bottom three seeds were ranked #8, #12, and #14. So the depth of Sydney is defined by [(8+12+14)-(1+2+4)]/3 = (34-7)/3 = 27/3 = 9. Note: For purposes of calculations, only the top sixteen seeds at 32-seed events are counted.

Based on the following, we rate the tournaments on the Tour as follows (sorted by strength). Note: Tournaments below Tier II shown in *italics.*Where two tournaments are of equal difficulty, the list is in calendar order:

Tournament Rank	Tier	Tournament	Strength Score	Depth Score	Winner

The Top Tournaments Based on Top Players Present — Method 1

Proposal #2: The following table assesses tournaments based on the top players who play. It starts with tournaments played by the #1 player, and lists the number of other Top Ten players present. Then it lists tournaments headlined by #2, etc. Only tournaments from Tier II up are listed. The difficulty with this system is that a tournament with (say) four Top Ten players headed by the #5 player might be considered stronger than a tournament with only one Top Ten player, but that one player being #2.

Trn Rank	Tournament	Top Player Present	# of Top 10	Top Player Missing	Ranks of Missing Top 10 Players	Winner

The Top Tournaments Based on Top Players Present — Method 2

Proposal #3: This method combines the above with the "Tournament Strength Index" proposed by Geert Calliauw. The Tournament Strength Index calculates the total quality points available for the top eight seeds, and calculates this as a fraction of the possible quality points if all of the Top Eight played. My modified version uses the same calculation, but counts only Top Ten players. Recall that the #1 player is worth 100 quality points, #2 is worth 75, #3 66, #4 55, #5 50, and players #6-#10 are worth 43. Thus the percentage listed below is the total quality points divided by the sum of the values for the Top Eight, 475.

Strongest Tournaments Won

Based on the data in the previous table, we can also list the players in terms of strength of strongest tournament won:

Ranking	Player	Tournament Score	Tournament
	Capriati	100.0	Australian Open
	V. Williams	100.0	Wimbledon, U. S. Open
	S. Williams	83.6	Munich
	Davenport	79.4	Filderstadt
	Hingis	77.1	Sydney
	Mauresmo	75.6	Berlin
	Dokic	48.2	Moscow
	Clijsters	45.5	Stanford
	Seles	9.1	Bahia[1]

1. In fairness, Seles also won Oklahoma City, with a 29.7% score. But that was a Tier III, which we are not including in these rankings. The field at Bahia, however, was weaker than most Tier III events.

Strongest Tournament Performances

The list below shows the biggest performances (highest number of points earned) in 2001. Every result of more than 350 points is listed.

Seeds and their Success Rates

The following tables summarize how successful seeded players are at holding their seeds. (It will be observed that seeding is much more accurate at the stronger tournaments.)

In the tables which follow, the heading "reached seeded round" refers to the number of seeds who made it to the round in which seeds are expected to face seeds (e.g. the Round of 16 at the Slams, or the quarterfinals at a 28-draw tournament which has only eight seeds). The column "held seed" refers to players who not only reach the seeded round but reach the level expected for their seeding — so, e.g., seeds #5-#8 are expected to reach the quarterfinal; seeds #3 and #4 should reach the semifinal; #2 should reach the final, and #1 should win. If a player goes beyond her seeding, of course, she is regarded as having held her seed.

Slams (+ Munich)

Tournament	Seeds	Reached Seeded Round	Held Seed	% Reached Seeded Round	% Held Seed

The Road to Victory

Sometimes earning a title is easy; sometimes it's a long struggle. The following statistics offer perspectives on what a player had to do to earn a title (Tier II or higher).

Games Lost in Path to Title

The following table assesses the winner's path to victory by calculating the number of games lost on the way to the title. Since, however, some tournaments have more rounds than others, this is divided by the number of matches played to get games per match. (Note: for these purposes, a tiebreak counts as a game). Note: The lower the number of games per match, the better the player performed.

1. Davenport won her semifinal over Martina Hingis 2-1, retired. For lack of a better answer, I have excluded this match. If it is included as a whole match, Davenport's numbers are 22, 4, 5.5; if we call it, say, half a match, 22, 3.5, 6.3.

Quality Points Earned

The following table assesses the winner's path to victory by calculating the strength of her opponents, as measured by quality points. Since some tournaments have more rounds than others, this is divided by the number of matches played. (Note: It should be kept in mind that there are more quality points available to lower-ranked players than to higher-ranked players. Martinez, e.g., averaged 35 quality points per match at Berlin, while Hingis managed only 30 the week before at Hamburg. But Martinez's result is biased by the 100 points she earned with a win over an injured Hingis — she earned over half her quality points in that one match! Hingis had no such opportunity at Hamburg; she was the top seed.)

“Top Players” 2001

Early in 2000, the challenge was issued to define what constitutes a “Top Player.” After some discussion, those involved decided that a “Top Player” was one who met two of the following three criteria:

1. Has reached at least one Grand Slam semifinal in the last three years.
2. Has, during one of the last three years, defeated at least five Top Ten players during the year.
3. Has, during the last three years, won at least one tournament of Tier II or higher.

The following table shows how well current players have done against these goals. The column labelled “Total Achieved” lists the total number of accomplishments met — i.e. it totals Slam semifinals, Tier II or higher titles, and increments of five Top Ten players defeated (i.e. if you beat five Top Ten players in a year, it adds one to your total; beat ten and you add two, etc. Remainders do not carry; if you beat eight in one year and seven in another, that counts as two, not three.) Note: Players below the Top 20 in 2001 were skipped, as none have accomplishments. Others years have been marked “X.”

Total points "in the system" (sum of the Best 17 scores of all ranked players): 147,329.5 *(total last year was 137,860.05 (sic.).) The Top 25 have 56,509 of these, or 38.4%, down from 40.0% last year.

* Note that the ranking system changed from Best 18 to Best 17 in 2001, taking points "out of the system."

The Year of the Injury

When the WTA went to the additive ("Best 17") ranking system, it did so against the wishes of the top players. They didn't want to have to play the extra tournaments needed to succeed under Best 17.

The players appear to have been right. It took a while, but injuries to top players have become routine. 2000 was the first "year of the injury." The WTA responded by lowering the minimum from Best 18 to Best 17. This, predictably, didn't help — it didn't reduce the incentive to overplay, just the reward.

The following list attempts to tabulate top players' injuries in 2001, with their effects. It lists the player, and her assorted injuries, plus the events she missed in consequence (this list necessarily somewhat uncertain, as it is based on past schedules and initial sign-ups) and the effect on her ranking

Doubles

Analysing doubles is much more complex than singles, because of the complications of different teams — and also because some players play doubles much more often than others. Martina Hingis, for instance, played eighteen singles tournaments but only six doubles tournaments. Elena Likhovtseva, by contrast, played 27 singles tournaments — and 26 doubles events.

The following section, therefore, only sketches the state of doubles.

Doubles Ranking Fluctuation

The table below is similar to the Ranking Fluctuation Table for Singles, except that rankings are recorded monthly rather than twice monthly. All players who were in the Top Thirty on the specified days are listed, except those who were retired but not yet removed from the list (Halard-Decugis, Bollegraf).
Statistics for the Williams Sisters in the last three columns are based on a January 1 ranking of 30, which is what they achieved after Sydney (where they lost first round but came to be ranked as a result of having three events). Others with uncertain rankings have their rankings projected.

Individual Results: The Top Thirty Doubles Players/Results

This table is generally equivalent to the table of results in the section on singles, save that the format is somewhat simplified. The list shows each tournament the player played and the partner with whom she played. This is followed, in parenthesis, by the tier of the tournament, a notation showing how far the player advanced, and the number of wins her team had to reach that point.

Head-to-Heads — Team Losses

Head-to-head records in doubles don't mean much. It's a much bigger achievement to beat Rennae Stubbs when she plays with Raymond than when she plays with Dokic. As a result, no attempt is made to compile head-to-heads for doubles. Rather, the following lists show the opponents to whom the top doubles teams have lost this year. The first line of each section shows, in bold, the names the doubles team. The number of events played together is in square brackets []. The opponents who beat them, and the event at which this occurred, follows. Note that teams often did not win an event even though they are not shown as having a loss. Williams/Williams, for instance, won only one of their two events — they withdrew from the other.

Alternate Doubles Rankings

For explanations of these rankings, see the equivalent section in singles. Because quality points are far less important in doubles (constituting roughly 20% of a player's total, rather than nearly 40% as in singles), we calculate only the 1996 rankings. Some of these results are slightly approximate.

Rankings under the 1996 Ranking System (Divisor, Minimum 14)

1996 Rank	Player	Points	Tournaments	Score	WTA Rank
1	Stubbs, Rennae	3787	15	252.5	2

	Krizan, Tina	1298	25	51.9	23
	Pratt, Nicole	1219	24	50.8	27

(This, incidentally, reveals a distinct flaw in the WTA points system: Raymond played three more events than Stubbs, and won two, but ends up ranked lower because she a lower fraction of Slams distorting her total.)

Majors Ranking

In the singles section, we defined the ten WTA "Majors" (tournaments effectively all the top players play): Sydney, Australian Open, Indian Wells, Ericsson, Roland Garros, Wimbledon, San Diego, U. S. Open, Filderstadt, and Munich. We can apply the same "majors ranking" in doubles: Five points for a title at these events, three for a final, one for a semifinal. If we do this, we can rank both teams and individuals. We start with the team rankings:

WTA Calendar for 2001 • Events and Results

The list below summarized the results of all Tour events in 2001. Tournaments are arranged by dates. The first item for each tournament lists the location, the surface, and the Tier. The next line gives the score of the singles final. This the names of the two semifinalists follow, then a list of seeds, with rankings and results. For tournaments below Tiers II, only the top two seeds are mentioned. For tournaments of Tier II and higher, four seeds are listed if the event has a 28-draw; otherwise, the top eight seeds are mentioned. This is followed by a list of noteworthy upsets, and then by significant historical facts about the event.

A day-by-day account of what are, in the editor's opinion, the most significant match(es) of each day of the year.

January 1 — Auckland 1R: Marlene Weingärtner def. Nathalie Déchy (3) 7–6 (7–5), 4–6, 6–0
#87 Weingärtner quickly ruins Déchy's return from a several-month injury.

January 2 — Auckland 1R: Jill Craybas def. Sandrine Testud (1) 6–1, 7–5
#17 Testud sees her return from injury ruined by #145 Craybas, a qualifier.

January 3 — Auckland 2R: Allison Bradshaw def. Barbara Schett (2) 7–6 (7–1), 3–6, 6–4
Qualifier Bradshaw upsets Schett in only her second Tour main draw event.

January 4 — Gold Coast QF: Meghann Shaughnessy (6) def. Conchita Martinez (1) 6–2, 6–1
#38 Shaughnessy easily polishes off the only Top Ten player in action this week.

January 5 — Gold Coast SF: Silvia Farina Elia def. Patty Schnyder (2) 6–2, 6–4
#63 Farina Elia, a former Top Twenty player, finally shows signs of truly recovering her form.

January 6 — Gold Coast F: Justine Hénin (8) def. Silvia Farina Elia 7–6 (7–5) 6–4
Hénin's second career title puts her on the verge of the Top Thirty

January 7 — Canberra 1R: Nathalie Déchy (7) def. Miriam Oremans 7–6 (7–1) 6–3
Déchy posts her first win since the 2000 U.S. Open.

January 8 — Canberra 1R: Wynne Prakusya def. Silvija Talaja (8) 6-1 1-0 retired
For the second straight year, Talaja cannot complete her opening match at Sydney.

January 9 — Sydney 1R Doubles: Hingis/Seles def. Williams/Williams 6–4 3–6 7-6 (7–2)
The new team of Hingis/Seles celebrate their partnership with a win. Despite losing, the Williams Sisters finally get a doubles ranking.

January 10 — Sydney 2R Doubles: Hingis/Seles def. Davenport/Morariu (3) 7–5 6–3
Sydney 2R: Corina Morariu def. Anna Kournikova (6) 6–2 6–1
Sydney 2R: Amélie Mauresmo def. Amanda Coetzer (7) 7–5 7–5
Sydney 2R: Lisa Raymond def. Jennifer Capriati (8) 2–6 6–3 7–5
Canberra 2R: Justine Hénin def. Magdalena Maleeva (5) 6–2 6–3
Canberra 2R: Ai Sugiyama def. Patty Schnyder (6) 6–0 3–6 7–5
In the wildest day of the year 2001 so far, three Top Fifteen players lose at Sydney, and two Top 25 players lose at Canberra. Meanwhile, Martina Hingis leads Seles to another doubles surprise.

January 11 — Sydney QF: Amélie Mauresmo def. Monica Seles (4) 6–4 7–6 (7–5)
Sydney QF: Martina Hingis (1) def. Serena Williams (5) 6–4 7–5
Canberra QF: Justine Hénin def. Chanda Rubin (3) 6–2 6–3
Canberra QF: Nathalie Déchy (7) def. Elena Dementieva (2) 2–6 6-4 6-4
The upset plague continues. In addition to the above, all of the top four seeds at Hobart fall on this day. Meanwhile, Martina Hingis beats Serena Williams, making her the first player to beat a Williams Sister in singles and doubles since Lindsay Davenport did it to Venus at the Australian Open 1999.

January 12 — Canberra SF: Sandrine Testud (4) def. Mary Pierce (1) 6–2 6–2
Pierce's inconsistency resurfaces as Testud reaches her first final since the 2000 Pan Pacific

January 13 — Sydney F: Martina Hingis (1) def. Lindsay Davenport (2) 6–3 4–6 7–5
Canberra F: Justine Hénin def. Sandrine Testud (4) 6–2 6–2
Hingis starts 2001 with a win over her chief rival, giving her a twelve-match wining streak (counting Hopman Cup), while Hénin extends her winning streak to ten.

January 15 — Australian Open 1R: Barbara Schett def. Elena Likhovtseva 4–6 7–6 (7–2) 6–4
Australian Open 1R: Janette Husarova def. Chanda Rubin (11) 6–3 6–0
Qualifier Husarova defeats an injured Rubin while Schett and Likhovtseva wage a contest between the highest-ranked unseeded players. Likhovtseva, by losing, falls out of the Top 25.

January 16 — Australian Open 1R: Paola Suarez def. Nathalie Déchy 6–2 6–1
Déchy's disappointments continue; by winning, Paola Suarez puts herself on the verge of the Top 25.

January 17 — Australian Open 2R: Emmanuelle Gagliardi def. Conchita Martinez (5) 7–5 3–6 8–6
In what might well be the longest match of the year (three hours 23 minutes), Gagliardi knocks out the defending semifinalist. Martinez risks falling to #6 as a result.

January 18 — Australian Open 1R: Hingis/Seles def. Raymond/Stubbs (1) 7–6 (7–2) 6–3
Last year's doubles finalist and new partner Monica Seles polish off last year's champions in a first round match so tough that it causes Stubbs to protest the seeding mechanism.

January 19 — Australian Open 3R: Anna Kournikova (8) def. Barbara Schett 2–6 6–4 6–3
Australian Open 3R: Justine Hénin def. Sandrine Testud (14) 6–2 6–4
Hénin extends her winning streak to thirteen while Kournikova reaches her first Round of Sixteen at a Slam since the 2000 Australian Open, beating her doubles partner in the process.

January 20 — Australian Open 3R: Paola Suarez def. Mary Pierce (7) 6–3 6–2
For the second straight year, 1995 champion and 1997 finalist Pierce exits early. The win will put Paola Suarez into the Top 25.

January 21 — Australian Open 4R: Monica Seles def. Justine Hénin 4–6 6–4 6–4
Hénin gives Seles a terrific struggle, but still can't beat a Top Ten player. Her winning streak ends at 13.

January 22 — Australian Open 4R: Venus Williams (3) def. Amélie Mauresmo (13) 6–2 3–6 6–3
In the day's only match involving two seeded players, Venus edges Mauresmo to tie her best-ever Australian showing.

January 23 — Australian Open QF: Jennifer Capriati (12) def. Monica Seles (4) 5–7 6–4 6–3
Capriati's first Top Five win in nearly a decade puts her in her second consecutive Australian Open semifinal.

January 24 — Australian Open QF: Venus Williams (3) def. Amanda Coetzer (10) 2–6 6–1 8–6
Australian Open QF: Martina Hingis (1) def. Serena Williams (6) 6–2 3–6 8–6
Two incredible matches decided 8–6 in the third mean that Hingis and Venus — clearly the two best players of 2000 — will once again meet before a final.

January 25 — Australian Open SF: Martina Hingis (1) def. Venus Williams (3) 6–1 6–1
Australian Open SF: Jennifer Capriati (12) def. Lindsay Davenport (2) 6–3 6–4
Jennifer Capriati tops the biggest win of her comeback with an even bigger win, reaching her first-ever Slam final. Meanwhile, Hingis beats the two Williams Sisters in the same event — a first for her, and the first time anyone has done it since Steffi Graf at Sydney 1999. Interestingly, the two losers will meet in the doubles final.

January 26 — Australian Open F: Williams/Williams def. Davenport/Morariu (7) 6–2 4–6 6–4
In a match noteworthy mostly for Davenport's poor play, the Williams Sisters complete the career doubles Slam.

January 27 — Australian Open F: Jennifer Capriati (12) def. Martina Hingis (1) 6–4 6–3
Hingis's Slam drought continues as Jennifer Capriati wins her first-ever Grand Slam title.

January 30 — Pan Pacific 1R: Lisa Raymond def. Lilia Osterloh 6–1 6–4
Last year, Osterloh defeated Mary Pierce at the Pan Pacific. The loss of these points will probably drop her out of the Top Fifty.

January 31 — Pan Pacific 1R Doubles: Srebotnik/Testud def. Davenport/Morariu 6–2 2–6 7–6(7–5)
After reaching the Australian Open final, Davenport and Morariu lose to a pickup team.

February 1 — Pan Pacific 2R: Ai Sugiyama def. Sandrine Testud (5) 6–4 6–4
Pan Pacific 2R: Shinobu Asagoe def. Amanda Coetzer 6–4 5–7 7–6 (7–5)
Testud, last year's finalist, loses early and drops two places in the rankings, while Asagoe scores her first-ever Top Ten win.

February 2 — Pan Pacific QF: Anna Kournikova (3) def. Anne-Gaelle Sidot 7–6 (7–4) 6–2
A day after four of six seeds in action lost, all four surviving seeds win. Kournikova's is the most significant win, as it moves her from #9 back up to her career-high #8 ranking.

February 3 — Pan Pacific SF: Kournikova/Tulyaganova def. Arendt/Sugiyama (2) 4–6 7–6(7–1) 6–0
On a day when the top two singles seeds reached the final, Kournikova justifies her #3 doubles ranking by beating #1 doubles player Sugiyama and #7 Arendt despite playing with a pickup partner.

February 4 — Pan Pacific F: Lindsay Davenport (2) def. Martina Hingis (1) 6–7 (7–4) 6–4 6–2
Davenport wins her first title of 2001

February 6 — Paris 1R: Meghann Shaughnessy def. Sandrine Testud (5) 7–6 (7–4) 4–6 6–3
Testud, for the third year in a row, loses her opening-round match in Paris.

February 7 — Paris 2R: Anne Kremer def. Mary Pierce (1) 6–3 6–3
Pierce's misery in 2001 continues as she loses her opening match to a player ranked #35. Pierce has yet to beat a Top 50 player in 2001.

February 8 — Paris 2R: Magdalena Maleeva def. Elena Dementieva (4) 2–6 6–0 6–3
Dementieva's loss leaves only one seed — #6 Anke Huber — in the top half of the Paris draw. (All seeds made it to the quarterfinal in the bottom half.) Dementieva falls to 3–3 in 2001.

February 9 — Paris QF: Amélie Mauresmo (8) def. Anna Kournikova (2) 2–6 7–6 (7–4) 6–1
Kournikova once again blows a match in which she leads, and will fall to #9 in the rankings.

February 10 — Paris SF: Amélie Mauresmo (8) def. Nathalie Tauziat (3) 6–2 6–1
The defending champion, the oldest top player on the tour, loses to the youngest of the important French players in an all-French semi. Mauresmo continues to show what she can do when healthy.

February 11 — Paris F: Amélie Mauresmo (8) def. Anke Huber (6) 7–6 (7–2) 6–1
Mauresmo wins her third title, and first in over a year. She is the lowest-ranked winner of a Tier II or higher event this year.

February 12 — Nice 1R: Meilen Tu def. Amy Frazier (6) 6–2 3–6 6–0
Tu breaks into the Top Fifty for the first time.

February 13 — Nice 1R: Magdalena Maleeva def. Patty Schnyder 6-3 5-7 6-3
Schnyder puts up her fourth straight loss as a season of misery continues

February 14 — Doha 2R: Adriana Gersi def. Mary Pierce 6–4 5–7 6–0
Nice 2R: Anne Kremer def. Nathalie Tauziat 6–3 6–4
Pierce suffers her third straight loss, her longest streak in years, to a player ranked #77, while Kremer gathers annother French scalp a week after beating Pierce

February 15 — Nice 2R: Silvia Farina Elia def. Conchita Martinez (2) 6–2 6–2
Once again Martinez (claiming a leg injury) shows why she usually avoids indoor events.

February 16 — Nice QF: Magdalena Maleeva def. Elena Dementieva (4) 6–3 6–3
Maleeva continues to impress indoors, while Dementieva continues to struggle feebly

February 17 — Nice SF: Magdalena Maleeva def. Venus Williams (1) 7–6 (10–8) 6–4
Maleeva does it again, while Venus loses her third straight event.

February 18 — Nice F: Amélie Mauresmo def. Magdalena Maleeva 6–2 6–0
Mauresmo wins her second tournament in a row, and tenth match in a row, with a flourish.

February 19 — Oklahoma City 1R: Sandra Cacic def. Amy Frazier (4) 6–1 3–6 7–6(7–3)
Frazier continues to struggle on everything except American hardcourts as she loses to world #129.

February 20 — Dubai 2R: Mary Pierce def. Iroda Tulyaganova 7–6 (7–4) 6–4
Pierce struggles against the world #64, but at last wins a match.

February 21 — Dubai 2R: Lina Krasnoroutskaya def. Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario 6–3 5–7 6–3
Sanchez-Vicario's first match of 2001 ends with a resounding "thud."

February 22 — Dubai QF: Rachel McQuillan def. Mary Pierce 6–3 6–1
Oklahoma City 2R: Daniela Hantuchova def. Amanda Coetzer 7–6 (7–0) 3–6 6–0
Pierce's misery continues as she loses to a qualifier ranked #111. Or formerly #111; this will move McQuillan to about #68. Amanda Coetzer gets served off the court by #108 Hantuchova.

February 23 — Oklahoma City QF: Jennifer Capriati def. Lisa Raymond 6–4 6–3 6–4
Facing her first quality opponent since winning the Australian Open, Capriati struggles but wins.

February 24 — Dubai F: Martina Hingis (1) def. Nathalie Tauziat (3) 6–4 6–4
Hingis wins her third title of 2001, and picks up hardware from her twenty-third different event.

February 25 — Oklahoma City F: Monica Seles (1) def. Jennifer Capriati (2) 6–3 5–7 6–2
Seles's first title since the 2000 clay season ends Capriati's ten match winning streak.

February 26 — Scottsdale 1R: Magui Serna def. Justine Hénin 7–6(7–5) 7–6(7–5)
Serna the Giant Killer collects another scalp.

February 28 — Acupulco 2R: Mariana Diaz-Oliva def. Sandrine Testud (3) 6-2 ret.
Acupulco, having already lost Anna Kournikova to a broken foot, loses the #3 seed to colitis.

March 1 — Scottsdale 2R: Tina Pisnik def. Elena Likhovtseva (9) 7–6 (7–5) 1–6 7–6 (7–5)
Scottsdale suffers its second upset in a match where the loser wins more games than the winner.

March 2 — Scottsdale QF: Meghann Shaughnessy (8) def. Kim Clijsters (5) 6–2 6–4
Shaughnessy continues her gradual rise while Clijsters continues to be inconsistent.

March 3 — Scottsdale SF: Meghann Shaughnessy (8) def. Monica Seles (2) 3–6 7–6 (7–5) 6–2
Shaughnessy puts up her best result to date, and produces the upset of the tournament.

March 4 — Acupulco F: Amanda Coetzer (1) def. Elena Dementieva (2) 2–6 6–1 6–2
Dementieva fails again to win a title. Maybe there is something about blonde Russians?

March 8 — Indian Wells 1R: Sandra Kleinova (Q) def. Daja Bedanova 7–6 (7–3) 3–6 7–6 (8–6)
Bedanova loses to a player ranked #110

March 9 — Indian Wells 2R: Elena Bovina (WC) def. Conchita Martinez (5) 6–4 6–4
Indian Wells 2R; Tathiana Garbin def. Monica Seles (4) 7–6 (8–6) 3–6 6–4
Martinez loses to #141, while Seles suffers among the worst losses of her career. (She has what will prove to have been a major foot injury.)

March 10 — Indian Wells 2R: Evie Dominikovic (Q) def. Nathalie Tauziat (9) 6–4 4–6 7–5
Few things say more about the problems women have serving and volleying on hardcourts than the fact that a qualifier ranked #99 can defeat world #12 Nathalie Tauziat on a hardcourt.

March 11 — Indian Wells 3R: Nathalie Déchy (23) def. Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario (14) 7–6 (11–9) 3–6 6–2
In another wild day, #36 Déchy, back after half a year, beats the world #14, while #25 Lisa Raymond defeats #18 Sandrine Testud, Rachel McQuillan continues her surprising results by beating #24 Meghann Shaughnessy one round after beating #20 Amy Frazier, and in a foretaste of the future, Kim Clijsters beats Justine Hénin 1–6 6–4 6–3

March 12 — Indian Wells R16: Silvia Farina Elia (31) def. Anke Huber (11) 6–3 4–6 6–4
Farina, once a Top Twenty player, shows signs of regaining that form, while the top half of the Indian Wells draw opens up even more.

March 13 — Indian Wells QF: Kim Clijsters (14) def. Elena Bovina 6–2 6–2
Bovina's magic run finally ends as Clijsters reached her first-ever Tier I semifinal.

March 14 — Indian Wells QF: Serena Williams (7) def. Lindsay Davenport (2) 6–1 6–2
As Serena moves up from #10 to #7, Lindsay Davenport's fate falls out of her hands. It's now entirely up to Venus Williams whether Venus displaces Davenport as the #2 player.

March 15 — Indian Wells SF: Kim Clijsters (14) def. Martina Hingis (1) 6–2 2–6 6–1
Indian Wells SF: Serena Williams (7) def. Venus Williams (3), walkover
Clijsters puts up the biggest victory of her career as Hingis suffers her worst loss since San Diego 2000; Hingis's twelve-match winning streak is broken, as is her streak of ten consecutive finals. Meanwhile, Venus gives Serena a walkover into the Indian Wells final, claiming tendonitis.

March 16 — Indian Wells Doubles F: Arendt/Sugiyama (1) def. Ruano Pascual/Suarez (2) 6–4 6–4
The doubles team expected to be the best of 2001 finally wins a big event, but they aren't getting along.

March 17 — Indian Wells F: Serena Williams (7) def. Kim Clijsters (14) 4–6 6–4 6–2
Serena's first title of 2001 comes just where you would expect it: American hardcourts. The real surprise is not the result but the opponent she faced in the final.

March 21 — Ericsson 1R: Elena Bovina def. Ruxandra Dragomir Ilie 6–1 7–6 (7–5)

Bovina, the Sensation of Indian Wells, gives newlywed Dragomir Ilie a rather nasty wedding present.

March 22 — Ericsson 1R: Ai Sugiyama def. Lina Krasnoroutskaya 7–6 (7–3) 6–0

Krasnoroutskaya, who has rising 59 places in six weeks, keeps qualifying, but this time has the bad luck to run into the #2 unseeded player.

March 23 — Ericsson 2R: Boogert/Oremans def. Arendt/Sugiyama 7–5 6–3

Three singles seeds lost this day, notably Magdalena Maleeva (#12) losing to Marta Marrero (the other two who lost, Likhovtseva and Schnyder, were seeded lower and are in long slumps) — but the big surprise was the upset of the #1 doubles seeds.

March 24 — Ericsson 2R: Kveta Hrdlickova def. Barbara Schett 6–4 7–5

Inconsistency continues to plague Schett as Hrdlickova finally shows signs of recovering her pre-injuty form.

March 25 — Ericsson 3R: Tathiana Garbin def. Justine Hénin (20) 6–3 6–1

Garbin continues her amazing two-week run, not only beating Hénin but doing it easily. She is the only unseeded player in the Ericsson Round of Sixteen.

March 26 — Ericsson 4R: Jelena Dokic (21) def. Amanda Coetzer (6) 6–3 7–5

On a day when Venus Williams looked doubtful in her quest for #2 (she barely beat Tathiana Garbin, 7–5 7–6), Dokic knocks off Venus's potential quarterfinal opponent. It drops Coetzer from #9 to #8, and is Dokic's best hardcourt result to date.

March 27 — Ericsson QF: Martina Hingis (1) def. Anke Huber (10) 7–5 6–0

Hingis comes back from down 5-3 to win the last ten games.

March 28 — Ericsson QF: Elena Dementieva (7) def. Lindsay Davenport (2) 6–3 1–0 retired

Ericsson QF: Jennifer Capriati (4) def. Serena Williams (5) 6–1 7–6(7–5)

First Jennifer Capriati surprised everyone by beating an injured Serena Williams (thereby keeping herself at #5 in the rankings, and holding Serena at #6), then Lindsay Davenport, in an even more stunning surprise, hands the #2 ranking over to Venus Williams. Dementieva moves to a career-high #9.

March 29 — Ericsson SF: Venus Williams (3) def. Martina Hingis (1) 6–3 7–6(8–6)

Venus Williams cements her new #2 ranking with a win over the defending champion. It probably should have been the final; Hingis and Venus, between them, had won the last four Miami events.

March 30 — Ericsson SF: Jennifer Capriati (4) def. Elena Dementieva (7) 6–2 6–0

Dementieva once again fails to win a title, while Capriati finally seems to be prepared to back up her Australian Open win.

March 31 — Ericsson F: Venus Williams (3) def. Jennifer Capriati (5) 4–6 6–1 7–6 (7–4)

After two sets of terrible tennis and a final set of spectacular if high-risk results, Jennifer Capriati blows eight championship points to give Venus Williams her first title since the 2000 U. S. Open

April 1 — Ericsson F: Sanchez-Vicario/Tauziat (3) def. Raymond/Stubbs (2) 6–0 6–4

The road to #1 for Raymond/Stubbs gets derailed by two crafty players just starting out together.

April 2 — Porto Qualifying: Ludmila Cervanova def. Patricia Wartusch: 1–6 6–3 6–2

No great significance to this, except that — by pure luck of the draw — Cervanova and Wartusch will play again the next day, as qualifier and lucky loser. Cervanova will win the second meeting also, again in three sets, 6-2 3–6 6–1

April 3 — Boynton Beach $75K: Bethanie Mattek def. Elena Likhovtseva (1) 6–3 1–6 6–2

How bad are things going for Likhovtseva? She's losing to unranked sixteen-year-olds with poor junior results. This is her fourth loss in a row. Mattek will, however, back it up by winning her next match.

April 4 — Boynton Beach $75K: Maja Palaversic def. Tatiana Panova (4) 6–1 6–4

On a day when Porto is rained out, Palaversic, a Lucky Loser ranked #156, ushers the world's #35 out of Boynton Beach. The strongest Challenger yet this year has lost four of eight seeds in the first rounds.

April 5 — Porto 2R: Lubomira Bacheva def. Chanda Rubin (2) 7–6 (7–3) 6–1
In her first event back from surgery, Rubin is asked to play two matches on clay. She manages to win the first, in three sets, but doesn't have enough left for the second.

April 6 — Porto QF: Magui Serna (3) def. Rita Kuti Kis 3–6 6–4 7–6 (7–5)
By winning this match, Serna puts herself in the Top 25 for the first time in two years.

April 7 — Boynton Beach $75K: Henrieta Nagyova (2) def. Nathalie Déchy 3–6 6–4 6–1
Nagyova, the Scourge of the Less-than-Tier-III tournaments, reaches another final. A win will put her on the edge of the Top Thirty.

April 8 — Porto F: Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario (1) def. Magui Serna 6–3 6–1
Sanchez-Vicario picks up her first title since Cairo 1999; Serna earns her first-ever Tour final.

April 9 — Estoril 1R: Tathiana Garbin (8) def. Tatiana Poutchek 2–6 6–1 6–2
Garbin, last year's semifinalist and this year's sensation, needs three sets to start defending her points.

April 10 — Estoril 1R: Denisa Chladkova def. Anke Huber 7–5 3–6 6–2
#65 Chladkova ushers out last year's champion.

April 11 — Amelia Island 2R: Silvia Farina Elia def. Conchita Martinez (2) 6–4 6–1
Estoril 2R: Jana Kandarr def. Magdalena Maleeva (2) 6–3 7–5
In a bad day for second seeds, Silvia Farina Elia extends Conchita Martinez's loss streak to four, while Magdalena Maleeva again demonstrates why she dislikes clay

April 12 — Estoril 2R: Elena Bovina def. Magui Serna (5) 6–3 2–6 6–1
This result, combined with a loss by #4 seed Barbara Schett to Tina Pisnik, means that only #3 seed Justine Hénin and #8 Tathiana Garbin reach the Estoril quarterfinal. And Bovina continues to impress.

April 13 — Amelia Island QF: Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario (7) def. Martina Hingis (1) 6–2 6–4
A tough draw and continued sloppy play cost #1 Hingis her worst clay loss since she lost to Kournikova in the Berlin quarterfinal in 1998. It is Hingis's first loss on green clay since 1996. It also ends a four-year domination over Sanchez-Vicario, who temporarily returns to the Top Ten as a result.

April 14 — Amelia Island SF: Amélie Mauresmo (6) def. Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario (7) 6–3 6–2
Sanchez-Vicario's dream ends as Mauresmo reaches her third straight final.

April 15 — Amelia Island F: Amélie Mauresmo (6) def. Amanda Coetzer (4) 6–4 7–5
Mauresmo makes it fourteen matches, and three tournaments, in a row.

April 16 — Charleston 1R: Iva Majoli def. Jelena Dokic (13) 6–3 0–6 6–2
Dokic, last year's quarterfinalist, falls before Majoli in a test of inconsistency.

April 17 — Charleston 2R: Conchita Martinez def. Lilia Osterloh 1–6 6–3 6–0
Martinez finally breaks a four-match losing streak.

April 18 — Charleston 2R: Elena Likhovtseva def. Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario (5) 6–3 6–4
Sanchez-Vicario's hot streak comes to an abrupt end as Likhovtseva apparently breaks out of a slump.

April 19 — Charleston R16: Amy Frazier (10) def. Mary Pierce (6) 7–5 6–7 (7–1) 6–4
In a match someone had to lose, Mary Pierce out-slumps Amy Frazier. Pierce falls out of the Top Sixteen as a result, and may not be seeded at Roland Garros.

April 20 — Charleston QF: Martina Hingis (1) def. Amélie Mauresmo (7) 7–5 6–2
Charleston QF: Marlene Weingärtner def. Amanda Coetzer (4) 6–4 7–6 (7–3)
Martina Hingis stops Mauresmo and at last shows hints of getting on track, while Marlene Weingärtner, after years of inconsistency, breaks into the Top Fifty and looks ready to keep going.

April 21 — Charleston SF: Jennifer Capriati (2) def. Marlene Weingärtner 6–0 6–2
On a day of incredible dullness, Charleston #1 seed Hingis advances 6–2 6–2 to a final against #2 seed Capriati (who, by winning this match, reaches a career high #4), while at Budapest, #1 seed Maleeva and #2 seed Kremer also reach the final. Not one of the four top-seeded finalists lost a set in the semis.

April 22 — Charleston F: Jennifer Capriati (2) def. Martina Hingis (1) 6–0 4–6 6–4
Hingis's string of slop continues as she fails to earn revenge against Capriati

May 1 — Hamburg 1R: Andrea Glass def. Magui Serna (8) 6–4 6–3
Serna continues her life-long habit of inconsistency
May 2 — Hamburg 2R: Patty Schnyder def. Conchita Martinez (3) 6–3 2–6 6–2
Bol 2R: Fokina/Foretz def. Morariu/Sugiyama (1) 7–5 6–3
Is Martinez going away, or is Schnyder finally coming back?
For Morariu, this is the last doubles match of her year, and perhaps of her life; she is not feeling well, and will have to withdraw from her singles match at Berlin. It will later be diagnosed as leukemia.
May 3 — Hamburg 2R: Jelena Dokic def. Magdalena Maleeva (5) 6–1 6–1
When a player brought up on clay meets a player who prefers indoors, the results often aren't pretty.
May 4 — Hamburg QF: Jelena Dokic def. Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario (4) 3–6 7–6(7–5) 6–2
Dokic continues her surge with a win over a true clay great.
May 5 — Hamburg SF: Meghann Shaughnessy (7) def. Amanda Coetzer (2) 6–3 6–4
Meghann Shaughnessy gives more evidence that she has truly arrived.
May 6 — Hamburg F: Venus Williams (1) def. Meghann Shaughnessy (7) 6–3 6–0
Bol F: Angeles Montolio (3) def. Mariana Diaz-Oliva 3–6 6–2 6–4
Venus breezes through an easy draw, while Montolio wins her second career title and Diaz-Oliva makes her first final.
May 7 — Berlin 1R: Justine Hénin def. Joanette Kruger 4–6 6–2 6–2
Kruger, last year's semifinalist, crashes and burns, while Hénin makes a try for a Roland Garros seed.
May 8 — Berlin 1R: Anne Kremer def. Kim Clijsters (10) 6–2 6–1
Clijsters continues a record of failure on clay.
May 9 — Berlin 2R: Paola Suarez def. Magdalena Maleeva (9) 6-4 6-1
A strong-looking Suarez knocks off a seed and now gets a chance at a slumping Conchita Martinez
May 10 — Berlin 3R: Justine Hénin (13) def. Venus Williams (2) 6–1 6–4
The clay bug bites Venus again, as she suffers her third, and perhaps worst, loss of the year. Her chances of earning the #1 ranking at Roland Garros are now much poorer.
May 11 — Berlin QF: Jennifer Capriati (3) def. Conchita Martinez (7) 2–6 6–3 6–4
Capriati comes back from two breaks down in the final set to boot Martinez out of the Top 10.
May 12 — Berlin SF: Amélie Mauresmo (4) def. Martina Hingis (1) 3–6 6–0 6-4
Hingis's futility streak continues as Mauresmo ties her career high of #6.
May 13 — Berlin F: Amélie Mauresmo (4) def. Jennifer Capriati (3) 6–4 2–6 6–3
Mauresmo wins her Tour-leading fourth title of the year and strengthens her #6 position.
May 15 — Rome 1R: Nadia Petrova def. Mary Pierce (10) 6–2 6–4
Pierce continues to stumble her way out of the Top Twenty
May 16 — Rome 2R: Rita Kuti Kis def. Jennifer Capriati (2) 1–6 6–2 7–6(7–5)
On a day when four of the eight top seeds lose their opening matches, the loss by Jennifer Capriati is most stunning.
May 17 — Rome R16: Amélie Mauresmo def. Daniela Hantuchova 6–2 3–6 6–3
Mauresmo survives a scare but keeps on the winning track.
May 18 — Rome QF: Martina Hingis (1) def. Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario (7) 6–3 6–1
For one day, the world looks normal again…
May 19 — Rome SF: Amélie Mauresmo (4) def. Martina Hingis (1) 6–4 7–6(7–5)
…but "normalcy" fails to last as Mauresmo continues her dominant year.
May 20 — Rome F: Jelena Dokic (14) def. Amélie Mauresmo (4) 7–6(7–3) 6–1
Dokic's first career title is a famous Tier I; she ends Mauresmo's string at nine wins
May 21 — Madrid 1R: Kristina Brandi def. Amy Frazier (4) 4–6 6–2 7–5
Frazier and clay just don't mix.

May 22 — Madrid 1R: Sandrine Testud (3) def. Gala Leon Garcia (35) 2–6 6–3 6–0
Strasbourg 1R: Anna Smashnova def. Silvija Talaja 6–2 6–4
Strasbourg 1R: Iroda Tulyaganova def. Mary Pierce (3) 3–6 6–3 6–1
In one day, both defending champions and the Roland Garros champ crash and burn.

May 23 — Madrid 2R: Rossana de los Rios def. Monica Seles 7–5 2–6 6–4
Seles's return from injury hits a train wreck; after one match, she's back on the disabled list.

May 24 — Strasbourg QF: Nathalie Tauziat (2) def. Meghann Shaughnessy (5) 5–7 7–6(7–5) 7–5
Tauziat gives herself a shot at the Top Ten with a win over one of the hottest players of the year.

May 25 — Strasbourg SF: Silvia Farina Elia (8) def. Nathalie Tauziat (2) 3–6 6–4 6–0
Farina Elia gets another shot at a final. Can she do something with it this time?

May 26 — Strasbourg F: Silvia Farina Elia (8) def. Anke Huber (4) 7–5 0–6 6–4
Farina Elia wins her first title — at age 29! — after seven failed attempts

May 28 — Roland Garros 1R: Barbara Schett def. Venus Williams (2) 6–4 6–4
Roland Garros 1R: Jana Kandarr def. Amélie Mauresmo (5) 7–5 7–5
On the first day of the French Open, four of the eight seeds in action, including the top two, lose. This ends Venus's chances of becoming #1 before fall (and probably for the whole year), and sets Mauresmo back nearly as far.

May 29 — Roland Garros 1R: Serena Williams (6) def. Sarah Pitkowski 6–2 6–7(7–4) 6–1
It took two years, but finally Serena wins a clay match.

May 30 — Roland Garros 2R: Henrieta Nagyova def. Elena Dementieva (7) 7–5 7–5
With this, all four top seeds are out of the bottom half of the draw.

May 31 — Roland Garros 2R: Amy Frazier def. Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario (11) 1-6 6-3 6-4
For only the second time in her career, and the first since 1990, Sanchez-Vicario loses before the quarterfinal at Roland Garros. She also drops from #8 to #15 or lower. The fact that the loss is to Frazier just makes it more amazing.

June 1 — Roland Garros 3R: Petra Mandula def. Jelena Dokic (15) 3–6 6–4 6–2
A qualifier ranked #131 stops Dokic's winning streak at 8.

June 2 — Roland Garros 3R: Cara Black def. Conchita Martinez (8) 3-6 6-3 6-4
Last year's finalist Martinez suffers her earliest-ever Roland Garros loss and falls out of the Top Twenty.

June 3 — Roland Garros 4R: Kim Clijsters (14) def. Henrieta Nagyova 6–4 4–6 6–3
In the only really close match of the fourth round, Clijsters reaches her first Slam quarterfinal and breaks into the Top Ten.

June 4 — Roland Garros DOUBLES 3R: Po Messerli/Tauziat (4) def. Capriati/Sugiyama (14) 7-6(7-4) 6-7(5-7) 6-4
Will a tough doubles match take enough out of Capriati to hurt her in singles?

June 5 — Roland Garros QF: Jennifer Capriati (4) def. Serena Williams (6) 6–2 5–7 6–2
In the only quarterfinal involving two seeded players, Capriati overcomes errors to reach her second straight Slam semifinal. Serena still hasn't made it past a clay quarterfinal.

June 7 — Roland Garros SF: Jennifer Capriati (4) def. Martina Hingis (1) 6–3 6–4
Capriati prepares to pass Hingis in points earned this year as Hingis again stinks up the court.

June 8 — Roland Garros DOUBLES SF: Dokic/Martinez (16) def. Raymond/Stubbs (1) 7–5, 6–2
The de facto #1 doubles team shows its (lack of) feet of clay.

June 9 — Roland Garros F: Jennifer Capriati (4) d. Kim Clijsters (12) 1–6 6–4 12–10
Capriati makes it two Slams in a row in an error-filled but dramatic final. Now why can't she win the smaller tournaments? It will be her last title of the year.

June 10 — Roland Garros DOUBLES F: Ruano Pascual/Suarez (2) def. Dokic/Martinez (16) 6–2 6–1
Last year's finalists win their first Slam together. Fourteen different women have now won doubles Slams in the past three years.

June 11 — Birmingham 1R: Daniela Hantuchova def. Nathalie Déchy (14) 4-6 6-4 6-3
Four of five seeds in action this day are upset, with this being perhaps the biggest surprise.
June 12 — Birmingham 2R: Virginie Razzano def. Ai Sugiyama (8) 6–2 6–4
Sugiyama has been struggling all year. Grass evidently isn't the solution to the problem.
June 13 — Birmingham 2R: Alicia Molik def. Jelena Dokic (2) 4–6 6–3 6–3
Dokic loses her second match straight to a player who might have a grudge (Molik is Australian, and Dokic used to be). Dokic's grass form doesn't look good going into Wimbledon....
June 14 — Birmingham 3R: Kristina Brandi (12) def. Tamarine Tanasugarn (5) 6–2 7–5
Last year's finalist continues a slump and falls out of the Top Thirty.
June 15 — Tashkent QF: Cristina Torrens Valero (7) def. Iroda Tulyaganova (3) 7–5 6–1
Tashkent loses its defending champion (who will fall out of the Top Sixty); all of the top five seeds are now out of the event.
June 17 — Birmingham SF: Nathalie Tauziat (1) def. Lisa Raymond (4) 6–0 7–6(7–5)
Forced by rain to play two matches in one day, Tauziat still wins both, avenges a loss here last year, and positions herself for a return to the Top Ten if she can win the final.
June 18 — Birmingham F: Nathalie Tauziat (1) def. Miriam Oremans 6–3 7–5
Tauziat wins her third career grass title, and her first title of 2001, as she at last gets to play on a surface suitable for her game. This will turn out to be the last singles title of Tauziat's career.
June 19 — 's-Hertogenbosch 1R: Iroda Tulyaganova def. Elena Dementieva (3) 7–5 6–3
Eastbourne 2R: Lindsay Davenport (1) def. Anne-Gaëlle Sidot 6–2 6–2
Eastbourne 2R: Magui Serna def. Magdalena Maleeva (4) 7–5 6–2
As Davenport returns to the court after three months, and Dementieva shows poor grass form, Magui Serna beats her second straight player ranked above her and perhaps prepares to reach a career high.
June 20 — Eastbourne 2R: Tamarine Tanasugarn def. Nathalie Tauziat (2) 6–7(7–1) 7–6(8–6) 6–3
Easy come, easy go. Two days after winning the Birmingham title, Tauziat loses her opening match.
June 21 — Eastbourne QF: Magui Serna def. Meghann Shaughnessy (7) 6–1 7–6(7–3)
Serna continues her strong run by beating her second straight seed, and the third straight player ranked above her. She assures that Eastbourne will have an unseeded finalist.
June 22 — Eastbourne SF: Lindsay Davenport (1) def. Chanda Rubin 6–1 6–1
For the first time in this tournament, Davenport really looks like she is back and in form.
June 23 — Eastbourne F: Lindsay Davenport def. Magui Serna 6–2 6–0
Davenport makes a triumphant return from injury and a good Wimbledon preparation.
June 25 — Wimbledon 1R: Virginia Ruano Pascual def. Martina Hingis (1) 6–4 6–2
If Hingis hasn't hit bottom, one hates even to think what comes next.
June 26 — Wimbledon 1R: Nadia Petrova def. Magui Serna (23) 6–3 2–6 6–2
Three days after reaching the Eastbourne final, 2000 Wimbledon quarterfinalist Magui Serna drops out of the Top 25.
June 27, 2001 — Wimbledon 2R: Lilia Osterloh def. Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario (13) 7–5(7–4) 7–5
For the first time since 1990, Sanchez-Vicario has lost before the third round in consecutive Slams.
June 28, 2001 — Wimbledon 2R: Amélie Mauresmo (6) def. Eleni Daniilidou (Q) 6–3 6–2
Could Mauresmo at last be ready to truly use her grass potential?
June 29, 2001 — Wimbledon 3R: Justine Hénin (8) def. Lisa Raymond (27) 6–4 7–6(8–6)
In what will probably be the deciding match of the top quarter, Justine Hénin reaches another Slam fourth round.
June 30, 2001 — Wimbledon 3R: Tamarine Tanasugarn (31) def. Amélie Mauresmo (6) 6–4 6–4
Not really unexpected, this being grass, but Mauresmo becomes the second top eight seed to fall.
July 2, 2001 — Wimbledon 4R: Lindsay Davenport (3) def. Jelena Dokic (14) 7–5 6–4
Finally confronted with a tough Wimbledon draw, Dokic fails to defend her semifinalist points and falls out of the Top Twenty.

July 3, 2001 — Wimbledon QF: Jennifer Capriati (4) def. Serena Williams (5) 6–7(7–4) 7–5 6–3
Serena Williams was up a set and a break, but couldn't keep it up in the face of an upset stomach. After the match, she pulled out of doubles.

July 5, 2001 — Wimbledon SF: Justine Hénin (8) def. Jennifer Capriati (4) 2–6 6–4 6–2
Capriati's Slam streak ends at nineteen matches as Hénin reaches her first Slam final.

July 8, 2001 — Wimbledon F: Venus Williams (2) def. Justine Hénin (8) 6–1 3–6 6–0
It took a day's rain delay and a lot of rescheduling, but Venus wins her third Slam.

July 9, 2001 — Vienna 1R: Anna Smashnova def. Henrieta Nagyova (6) 6–4 5–7 6–2
Nagyova continues to have trouble with strong tournaments and weak players.

July 10, 2001 — Palermo 1R: Magui Serna (1) def. Klara Koukalova 6-3 3-6 6-2
Is Serna struggling, or is Koukalova continuing to improve?

July 11, 2001 — Vienna 1R: Maja Palaversic def. Daniela Hantuchova 6-4 6-3
Palaversic wins her first Main Draw match of 2001, and likely reaches a career high, shocking the Wimbledon mixed doubles winner

July 12, 2001 — Vienna 2R: Iroda Tulyaganova def. Elena Dementieva (1) 6–4 0–6 7–6(7–3)
Vienna 2R: Jelena Kostanic (Q) def. Jelena Dokic (2) 1–6 7–7(7–3) 6–0
The top two Vienna seeds both lose their opening matches and their opportunities: Dementieva to get back into the Top Ten, and Dokic to get back into the Top Twenty.

July 13, 2001 — Vienna QF: Paola Suarez (5) def. Barbara Schett (4) 7–6(8-6) 4–6 6–3
Schett's quest for a spot in the Top Twenty, and a defence of her title, comes to an abrupt end.

July 14, 2001 — Vienna SF: Iroda Tulyaganova def. Paola Suarez (5) 6–0 7–5
Tulyaganova continues her rise with a win over the player who had looked like the clear favorite.

July 15, 2001 — Vienna F: Iroda Tulyaganova def. Patty Schnyder (8) 6–3 6–2
Tulyaganova proves that her results at small events are no fluke.

July 16, 2001 — Knokke-Heist 1R: Denisa Chladkova def. Jelena Dokic (3) 6–4 6–2
Dokic's losing streak runs to three matches.

July 17, 2001 — Knokke-Heist 1R: Cristina Torrens Valero def. Mariana Diaz-Oliva (8) 6–2 6–0
Torrens Valero continues her clay hot streak with an upset of the #8 seed.

July 19, 2001 — Knokke-Heist 2R; Rossana de los Rios def. Silvia Farina Elia (2) 6–3 6–1
Farina Elia won't be making the Top Fifteen this week after all....

July 20, 2001 — Knokke-Heist QF: Iroda Tulyaganova def. Angeles Montolio (30) 6–2 6–4
Tulyaganova's winning streak reaches eight straight.

July 21, 2001 — Knokke-Heist SF: Iroda Tulyaganova def. Kim Clijsters (1) 6–0 6–4
Clijsters continues to sputter as Tulyaganova wins her ninth straight.

July 22, 2001 — Knokke-Heist F: Iroda Tulyaganova def. Gala Leon Garcia 6–2 6–3
Tulyaganova makes it ten in a row (the only ten-match clay streak of the year), and two titles in a row, and breaks into the Top 25.

July 23, 2001 — Stanford 1R: Sandra Cacic def. Anne Kremer (8) 6–4 5-7- 7–6(8–6)
With the tournament barely started, already one seed is out.

July 24, 2001 —sasablanca 1R: Zsofia Gubacsi def. Marta Marrero (2) 5–6 7–6(8–6) 6–0
On a day when five seeds fell at Casablanca, no upset was as surprising as this.

July 25, 2001 — Stanford 2R: Monica Seles (4) def. Meilan Tu 7–6(7–2) 6–2
In a second try at a comeback, Monica Seles at last scores a win.

July 26, 2001 — Stanford 2R: Jana Kandarr def. Amy Frazier (6) 7–5 6–7(7–3) 6–3
Frazier's hardcourt record looks to be in deep trouble....

July 27, 2001 — Stanford QF: Meghann Shaughnessy (5) def. Venus Williams (1) 2–6 7–5 7–6(7–4)
Venus not only fails to defend her title but also gives up the #2 ranking.

July 28, 2001 — Stanford SF: Lindsay Davenport (2) def. Monica Seles (4) 6–4 6–2
No great surprise that Seles, just off a long injury, still can't deal with Davenport

July 29, 2001 — Stanford F: Kim Clijsters (3) def. Lindsay Davenport (2) 6–4 6–7(5–7) 6–1
Clijsters finally wins a final.

July 30, 2001 — San Diego DOUBLES 1R: Hingis/Kournikova (1) def. L. Huber/Montalvo 6–1 6–1
*They're baaaack....

July 31, 2001 — San Diego 2R: Nicole Pratt def. Anna Kournikova (1) 6–7(1-7) 6–1 6–3
Well, Kournikova isn't all the way back; she loses her first match and drops to about #20. And, as it turns out, she's still hurting and will be out for several more weeks.

August 1, 2001 — San Diego 2R: Ai Sugiyama def. Kim Clijsters (5) 6–3 6–3
Maybe that celebration after winning Stanford was premature....

August 2, 2001 — San Diego 3R: Lindsay Davenport (4) def. Barbara Schett (16) 6–1 7–5
Davenport takes back the #3 ranking from Venus Williams, who just a week ago was #2....

August 3, 2001 — San Diego QF: Monica Seles (7) def. Jennifer Capriati (2) 6–3 6–3
Is Seles back — or is Capriati again showing why she isn't a true #1 player?

August 4, 2001 — San Diego SF: Monica Seles (7) def. Martina Hingis (1) 6–3 6–4
On examination, it appears the answer to the previous question is, "Seles is back."

August 5, 2001 — San Diego F: Venus Williams (2) def. Monica Seles (7) 6–2 6–3
Venus is just too strong.

August 6, 2001 — Los Angeles 2R: Virginie Razzano def. Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario (9) 3–6 6–1 6–4
Sanchez-Vicario's skid hits three, and her chances of ending in the Top Twenty get even worse.

August 7, 2001 — Los Angeles 2R: Nicole Pratt def. Iroda Tulyaganova (14) 6–4 6–1
Tulyaganova balances a ten-match winning streak on clay with two straight hardcourt losses.

August 8, 2001 — Los Angeles 3R: Martina Hingis (1) def. Elena Likhovtseva (15) 6–0 6–3
At last Hingis beats a good player efficiently. Can she keep it up?

August 9, 2001 — Los Angeles 3R: Nathalie Tauziat (5) def. Jelena Dokic (11) 6–0 0–6 6–2
Dokic continues to have problems on hardcourts. To put it mildly.

August 10, 2001 — Los Angeles QF: Nathalie Tauziat (5) def. Kim Clijsters (3) 6–4 6–2
Los Angeles QF: Monica Seles (6) def. Serena Williams (4) 6–2 3–6 7–6(7–2)
Tauziat and Seles both continue their amazing surges, while Serena drops to #10.

August 11, 2001 — Los Angeles SF: Monica Seles (6) def. Martina Hingis (1) 6–3 1–6 6–4
Seles's resurrection continues as she beats an injured Hingis.

August 12, 2001 — Los Angeles F: Lindsay Davenport (2) def. Monica Seles (6) 6–3 7–5
Davenport regains the #2 ranking, though it will likely last for only one week.

August 13, 2001 — Canadian Open 1R: Amy Frazier def. Anne Kremer 6–2 6–3
Two defending quarterfinalists with their rankings on the line. It was big, but it wasn't pretty.

August 14, 2001 — Canadian Open 1R: Marlene Weingärtner def. Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario (12) 3–6 6–1 6–4
Sanchez-Vicario drops out of the Top Twenty for the first time in thirteen years.

August 15, 2001 — Canadian Open 2R: Daja Bedanova def. Magdalena Maleeva (8) 6–4 7–6(7–2)
Bedanova continues her resurgence as Maleeva falls to #15.

August 16, 2001 — Canadian Open 3R: Anke Huber (13) def. Amélie Mauresmo (3) 6–3 6–3
And it wasn't even close. Mark this down as perhaps the last Top Ten win of Huber's career.

August 17, 2001 — Canadian Open 3R; Jennifer Capriati (1) def. Wynne Prakusya (Q) 7–6(7–2) 6–2
Capriati will play and win two matches this day, and this is the weaker opponent, but this is the match to give her back the #2 ranking and the #2 U. S. Open seed.

August 18, 2001 — Canadian Open SF: Jennifer Capriati (1) def. Anke Huber (14) 6–3 3–6 6–3
Huber just fails in her quest to earn the #16 U. S. Open seed.

August 19, 2001 — Canadian Open F: Serena Williams (4) def. Jennifer Capriati (1) 6–1 6–7(7–9) 6–3
Serena breaks her four-match losing streak to Capriati to win her second title of 2001.

August 20, 2001 — New Haven 1R: Anastasia Myskina def. Amanda Coetzer 6–3 7–5
Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario def. Paola Suarez 7–6(7–4) 6–4
Sanchez-Vicario finally breaks her losing streak while Coetzer continues to struggle in trying to find her form.

August 21, 2001 — New Haven 1R: Nathalie Tauziat (7) def. Meghann Shaughnessy 6–2 2–6 7–5
In one of the toughest first-round matches in WTA history, world #9 Tauziat continues her improbable Last Hardcourt Hurrah with a win over #12 Meghann Shaughnessy

August 22, 2001 — New Haven 2R: Nathalie Tauziat (7) def. Kveta Hrdlickova 6–1 7–6(7–3)
New Haven QF: Lindsay Davenport (1) def. Amélie Mauresmo (6) 6–4 6–4
Tauziat continues her solid hardcourt results, while Davenport and Mauresmo continue their consistent rivalry: Davenport wins the contests on fast surfaces, Mauresmo on slow.

August 23, 2001 — New Haven QF: Jennifer Capriati (2) def. Jelena Dokic 6–4 6–3
Capriati continues to pile up points as she works toward the #1 ranking.

August 24, 2001 — New Haven SF: Venus Williams (3) def. Jennifer Capriati (2) 6–4 7–6(7–1)
Venus wins two matches in one day (the first was a quarterfinal over Justine Hénin) to slow Capriati's quest for the #1 ranking.

August 25, 2001 — New Haven F: Venus Williams (3) def. Lindsay Davenport (1) 7–6(8–6) 6–4
Venus earns her fifth title of 2001 and her ninth straight match.

August 27, 2001 — U. S. Open 1R: Eva Bes def. Magui Serna (23) 6–3 6–1
The Magui Serna Story: She can beat anyone, and lose to anyone. This time, she loses, and probably loses her spot in the Top Thirty as a result.

August 28, 2001 — U. S. Open 1R: Maja Matevzic def. Silvia Farina Elia 6–2 6–4
Matevzic stretches Farina Elia's loss string to four by winning her first main draw Slam match.

August 29, 2001 — U. S. Open 1R DOUBLES: Coetzer/McNeil def. Arendt/Vis (6) 4-6 6-3 6-4
On a day when all the upsets were in doubles, this was the big one.

August 30, 2001 — U. S. Open 2R: Alicia Molik def. Magdalena Maleeva (15) 6–3 3–6 6–3
Maleeva was in great form in the spring indoor season. Will she find it again before the fall season?

August 31, 2001 — U. S. Open 3R: Daja Bedanova def. Meghann Shaughnessy (12) 6–4 6–1
Although ten seeds, and three Top Sixteen seeds, lost in the first two rounds, this was the first real surprise of the tournament.

September 1, 2001 — U. S. Open 3R: Elena Dementieva (11) def. Anke Huber (17) 6–3 7–5
Defending semifinalist Dementieva has looked sloppy this summer, but she hands Anke Huber the final U. S. Open defeat of her career.

September 2, 2001 — U. S. Open 4R: Daja Bedanova def. Monica Seles (7) 7–5 4–6 6–3
U. S. Open 3R DOUBLES: Callens/Rubin def. (9) Williams/Williams 6–2 4–6 7–5
U. S. Open 3R DOUBLES: Testud/Vinci def. (2) Ruano Pascual/Suarez 6–3 7–6(7–1)
On the day when Monica Seles suffers her worst U. S. Open loss in a decade, the bottom half of the doubles draw loses its top seeds and the seeds thought most likely to succeed. The Williams Sisters now have two losses and only one doubles title in 2001.

September 3, 2001 — U. S. Open 4R: Kim Clijsters (5) def. Elena Dementieva (11) 7–5 4–6 6–2
U. S. Open 4R: Amélie Mauresmo (8) def. Nathalie Tauziat (9) 6–0 6–7(1–7) 6–3
Tauziat plays her last Slam singles match as Clijsters drops Dementieva to #15.

September 4, 2001 — U. S. Open QF: Martina Hingis (1) def. Daja Bedanova 6–2 6–0
U. S. Open QF: Serena Williams (10) def. Lindsay Davenport (3) 6–3 6–7(7–9) 7–5
U. S. Open QF DOUBLES: Raymond/Stubbs (1) def. Hingis/Capriati 7–6(11–9) 6–4
Hingis actually looks solid as Davenport stumbles after a long contest. Meanwhile, Capriati does what she always does in doubles: Lose.

September 5, 2001 — U. S. Open QF: Venus Williams (4) def. Kim Clijsters (5) 6–3 6–1
People called this one of the ugliest matches played in recent years, but it guaranteed that Venus, and not Clijsters, would be #4.

September 6, 2001 — U. S. Open SF DOUBLES: Po-Messerli/Tauziat (4) def. Testud/Vinci 4-6 7-5 6-0
In her last-ever Slam, Tauziat makes her first Slam doubles final.

September 7, 2001 — U. S. Open SF: Serena Williams (10) def. Martina Hingis (1) 6–3 6–2
U. S. Open SF: Venus Williams (4) def. Jennifer Capriati (2) 6–4 6–2
For Martina Hingis, this means at least a few more weeks at #1. For the people who want an all-Williams final, it means they should be careful what they wish for.

September 8, 2001 — U. S. Open F: Venus Williams (4) def. Serena Williams (10) 6–2 6–4
Didn't I tell you to be careful what you wished for? Ugh.

September 9, 2001 — U. S. Open F DOUBLES: Raymond/Stubbs (1) def. Po-Messerli/Tauziat (4) 6–2 5–7 6–2
In another weak draw, Raymond and Stubbs win their second Slam of the year as Nathalie Tauziat bids a long farewell to Slam play.

September 10, 2001 — Bahia 1R: Joanette Kruger def. Patty Schnyder (7) 7–6(7–4) 6–4
So what else is new about Schnyder and losses?

September 11, 2001 — Bahia 2R: Silvia Farina Elia (4) def. Nathalie Déchy 6–4 1–6 6–1
Déchy's comeback stalls as Farina looks to hit a career-high #14.

September 12, 2001 — Bahia 2R: Jelena Dokic (2) def. Iva Majoli (WC) 6–1 6–2
In a match interrupted by bees, Majoli continues to be more down than up in an up-and-down year.

September 13, 2001 — Big Island 2R: Marissa Irvin def. Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario (3) 6–3 6–2
Sanchez-Vicario's year of horrors continues as she loses to the world #93.

September 14, 2001 — Bahia SF: Monica Seles (1) def. Henrieta Nagyova (5) 7–5 5–7 6–3
Nagyova comes so close to a spot in the Top Twenty....

September 15, 2001 — Bahia F: Monica Seles (1) def. Jelena Dokic (2) 6–3 6–3
Seles picks up her second title of 2001 as Dokic continues to seek hardcourt answers.

September 16, 2001 — Big Island F: Sandrine Testud (2) def. Justine Hénin (1) 6–3 2–0, retired
Years of playing a heavy schedule may have helped Testud survive a strong opponent

September 18, 2001 — Princess Cup 1R: Ai Sugiyama def. Cristina Torrens Valero (8) 6–1 6–2
When a Japanese hardcourt player meets a low-seeded clay player on a Japanese hardcourt, the result is predictable.

September 19, 2001 — Princess Cup 1R: Liezel Huber (Q) def. Iroda Tulyaganova (6) 6–4 6–1
Pretty soon, Tulyaganova will swear off hardcourts.

September 20, 2001 — Quebec City 2R: Martina Sucha def. Silvia Farina Elia (2) 3–6 6–4 7–6(10–8)
Farina Elia blows yet another opportunity to move above #15.

September 21, 2001 — Princess Cup QF: Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario (5) def. Sandrine Testud (4) 6–3 1–6 7–6(7–5)
Sanchez-Vicario finally posts a decent non-clay result.

September 22, 2001 — Princess Cup SF: Jelena Dokic (3) def. Kim Clijsters (1) 7–5 6–4
Dokic reaches her second straight hardcourt final. She's definitely learning.

September 23, 2001 — Princess Cup F: Jelena Dokic (3) def. Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario (5) 6–4 6–2
Dokic wins her second career title, and first on hardcourts. It's a dramatic turnaround.

September 24, 2001 — Bali 1R: Tina Pisnik def. Marlene Weingärtner (3) 7–6(7–5) 3–6 6–4
Weingärtner and hardcourts just don't seem to mix.

September 25, 2001 — Leipzig 1R: Anke Huber def. Barbara Schett (8) 7–6(7–5) 6–4
Back in Germany, Huber seems to be making her push for Munich.

September 26, 2001 — Leipzig 2R: Nathalie Tauziat (2) def. Angeles Montolio 6–7(2–7) 6-3 6-4
A near miss against the #2 seed still moves Montolio to a career-high ranking.

September 27, 2001 — Leipzig 2R — Daniela Hantuchova (Q) def. Jelena Dokic (3) 4–6 7–6(8–6) 6–0
Leipzig 2R: Anastasia Myskina (LL) def. Anna Kournikova (9) 6–4 3–6 6–3

Dokic had played ten straight weeks to hit try to hit the Top Ten, and — perhaps because she tried so hard — failed. Kournikova took all those weeks off with injury, but that didn't help, either.

September 28, 2001 — Bali QF: Angelique Widjaja (WC) def. Tamarine Tanasugarn (2) 2–6 7–5 6–2

The Wimbledon junior champion scores her first big Tour win.

September 29, 2001 — Bali SF: Joanette Kruger (8) def. Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario (1) 6–2 4–6 6–3

Sanchez-Vicario continues to struggle. And struggle. And struggle....

September 30, 2001 — Leipzig F: Kim Clijsters (1) def. Magdalena Maleeva (6) 6–1 6–1
Bali F: Angelique Widjaja (WC) def. Joanette Kruger (8) 7–6(7–2) 7–6(7–4)

On the day that Clijsters posts her first-ever title defense, Widjaja posts her first WTA title in her first WTA event.

October 1, 2001 — Moscow 1R DOUBLES: Hingis/Kournikova (2) def. Koukalova/Vaskova 6–0 6–3

Can Hingis pull Kournikova out of her slump, or vice versa?

October 2, 2001 — Moscow 1R: Galina Fokina def. Anna Kournikova 6–2 1–6 6–2

Kournikova is obviously back in her usual post-injury form.

October 3, 2001 — Moscow 2R: Francesca Schiavone def. Nathalie Tauziat (4) 6–4 5–7 7–5

Tauziat's loss will drop her out of the Top Ten unless Jelena Dokic loses to a wildcard ranked #258. (She didn't; Dokic would break into the Top Ten the next week)

October 4, 2001 — Moscow 2R: Barbara Schett def. Justine Hénin (3) 5–7 7–6(8–6) 6–2
Daja Bedanova def. Amélie Mauresmo (2) 6–2 6–7(6–8) 6–4

One-handed backhands are great indoors — if you use them to get to net. Hénin and Mauresmo don't.

October 5, 2001 — Moscow QF: Elena Dementieva (8) def. Martina Hingis (1) 6–2 6–2

Hingis's last real chance to hang onto #1, and to win the title, isn't even a close contest.

October 6, 2001 — Moscow SF: Elena Dementieva (8) def. Anastasia Myskina 6–7(7–9) 6–1 7–5

Dementieva is in a final, and she still hasn't moved above #13!

October 7, 2001 — Moscow F: Jelena Dokic (5) def. Elena Dementieva (8) 6–3 6–3
Moscow F DOUBLES: Hingis/Kournikova (2) def.
Dementieva/Krasnoroutskaya 7–6(7–1) 6–3

Dementieva continues to be the top Russian without a title, while Hingis finally wins a doubles title in 2001.

October 8, 2001 — Filderstadt 1R: Magdalena Maleeva def. Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario 7–5 7–5

Strike another blow to the Spaniard's outside shot at making Munich without help from injuries.

October 9, 2001 — Filderstadt 1R: Chanda Rubin def. Barbara Schett 6–2 7–5

A really-want-to-win match for both players; Rubin is trying to recover from a lost year, and Schett was defending Zurich semifinalist points.

October 10, 2001 — Filderstadt 1R DOUBLES: Hingis/Kournikova (3) def.
Navratilova/Sanchez-Vicario 6–3 6–4

Young Martina beats Old Martina — but what if they played the same side of the net?

October 11, 2001 — Filderstadt 2R: Anke Huber def. Kim Clijsters (4) 6–3 4–6 6–3

Has Clijsters played herself to exhaustion, or does Huber really want to make Munich?

October 12, 2001 — Filderstadt QF: Sandrine Testud def. Jennifer Capriati (2) 2–6 6–3 6–3

Martina Hingis gets one last chance to hold the #1 ranking — but she'll need to beat Lindsay Davenport.

October 13, 2001 — Filderstadt SF: Lindsay Davenport (3) def. Martina Hingis (1) 2–2, retired

Hingis fell flat on her back to injure her ankle, but her ranking falls on her face. Jennifer Capriati, despite losing in the quarterfinal and not having a title since Roland Garros, is the new #1.

October 14, 2001 — Filderstadt F: Lindsay Davenport (3) def. Justine Hénin (6) 7–5 6–4

Davenport earns her fifth title of the year and looks very strong indoors....

October 15, 2001 — Zurich 1R: Nadia Petrova def. Patty Schnyder 6–2 6–0
Even playing in her home country against a wildcard, Schnyder can't win.
October 16, 2001 — Zurich 1R: Iva Majoli (Q) def. Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario 7–6(7–5) 6–2
Sanchez-Vicario may make it to Munich, but it will be despite her best efforts.
October 17, 2001 — Zurich 2R: Nathalie Tauziat (5) def. Iroda Tulyaganova (23) 6–2 6–4
Tauziat clinches one more year-end championship.
October 18, 2001 — Zurich 2R: Daniela Hantuchova def. Barbara Schett 6–1 7–6(7–5)
Hantuchova reaches a career high of about #40 and also kills Schett's chances of reaching Munich.
October 19, 2001 — Zurich QF: Nathalie Tauziat (5) def. Sandrine Testud (9) 7–6(7–4) 7–6(7–4)
Tauziat may not be able to end the year in the Top Ten — but she's trying.
October 20, 2001 — Zurich SF: Lindsay Davenport (3) def. Jennifer Capriati (2) 6–1 5–7 6–2
#1 in the WTA rankings Capriati may be. #1 on indoor surfaces? Hah.
October 21, 2001 — Zurich F: Lindsay Davenport (3) def. Jelena Dokic (4) 6–3 6–1
Davenport's second straight title gives her a shot at the year-end #1.
October 22, 2001 — Luxembourg 1R: Amanda Coetzer def. Barbara Rittner 6–2 6–2
On her thirtieth birthday, Coetzer starts her last attempt to get into Munich.
October 23, 2001 — Linz 1R: Ai Sugiyama def. Barbara Schett 3–6 7–6(7–1) 6–3
Luxembourg 1R: Anna Kournikova (5) def. Jana Kandarr 6–4 7–5
Schett loses before her hometown crowd, and loses her last Munich chance, while Kournikova finally wins one.
October 24, 2001 — Linz 2R: Chanda Rubin def. Nathalie Tauziat (5) 3–6 7–5 6–3
Chanda Rubin makes a last attempt to put together her year as Tauziat suffers her next-to-last loss.
October 25, 2001 — Linz 2R: Alexandra Stevenson (Q) def. Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario (8) 6–3 3–6 6–0
Linz 2R: Iroda Tulyaganova def. Justine Hénin (2) 6–7(1–7) 6–0 6–3
Luxembourg 2R: Anke Huber (4) def. Cara Black 6–1 6–1
Luxembourg 2R: Anna Kournikova (5) def. Daniela Hantuchova 6–1 7–6(7–4)
On a day when three seeds lost at Linz, and the #2 lost at Luxembourg (and Linz), Anke Huber qualifies for her last year-end championship while Kournikova finally wins a big one over a solid player.
October 26, 2001 — Linz QF: Iroda Tulyaganova def. Tatiana Panova (Q) 6–2 6–4
Tulyaganova breaks into the Top Twenty for the first time.
October 27, 2001 — Luxembourg SF: Lisa Raymond (31) def. Tina Pisnik (Q) 6–2 6–0
It wasn't much of a contest, and shouldn't have been — but it puts Raymond back in the Top 25.
October 28, 2001 — Linz F: Lindsay Davenport (1) def. Jelena Dokic (4) 6–4 6–1
Davenport has won all four of her indoor titles this year, and looks ready to go for #1.
October 30, 2001 — Munich 1R: Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario def. Nathalie Tauziat (8) 6–3 6–4
Tauziat's last singles match is a rather sorry, error-filled affair. It's been a great seventeen years even so. We'll miss the WTA's last serve-and-volleyer.
October 31, 2001 — Munich 1R: Justine Hénin (6) def. Anke Huber 6–1 6–2
Another player goes quietly into retirement.
November 1, 2001 — Munich QF: Lindsay Davenport (2) def. Jelena Dokic (6) 5–4 6–2
Davenport has beaten Dokic three times in three weeks as she makes a last try for #1.
November 2, 2001 — Munich QF: Sandrine Testud def. Jennifer Capriati (1) 6–2 4–6 6–3
Testud beats a sick Capriati to give Davenport a real chance to regain the #1 spot.
November 3, 2001 — Munich SF: Lindsay Davenport (1) def. Kim Clijsters (3) 1–6 6–3 7–6(7–3)
Davenport just barely wins, but it's enough to earn her the year-end #1 ranking.
November 4, 2001 — Munich F: Serena Williams (7) def. Lindsay Davenport (2) walkover
Munich Doubles F: Raymond/Stubbs (1) def. Black/Likhovtseva (3) 7–5 3–6 6–3
On the day Lindsay Davenport washed out her year, the dominant doubles team of Raymond/Stubbs knocks off their #1 competition. Raymond ends the year on a 17-match doubles winning streak.

Novenber 5, 2001 — Pattaya 1R: Tatiana Poutchek def. Tamarine Tanasugarn (3) 3–6 6–3 6–2
Tanasugarn just can't seem to win at home.
November 6, 2001 — Pattaya 1R: Julia Vakulenko def. Iroda Tulyaganova (1) 6–4 7–6(7–2)
Tulyaganova once again fails to adjust to a new surface.
November 7, 2001 — Fed Cup Round Robin: Conchita Martinez (ESP) def. Alicia Molik (AUS) 2-6 6-0 7-5
It wasn't a great match, but Martinez is back on the court
November 8, 2001 — Pattaya 2R: Liezel Huber (Q) def. Ai Sugiyama (6) 7–5 6–0
Sugiyama squanders a 5-0 first set lead and a chance to end the year in the Top Thirty.
November 9, 2001 — Pattaya QF: Patty Schnyder (7) def. Anne Kremer (4) 6–3 6–4
Schnyder beats the defending champion in only her fifth win over a Top 35 player this year.
November 10, 2001 — Pattaya SF: Patty Schnyder (7) def. Rossana Neffa-de los Rios 7–5 0–6 6–3
Can Schnyder finally win another tournament?
November 11, 2001 — Pattaya F: Patty Schnyder (7) def. Henrieta Nagyova (2) 6–0 6–4
Schnyder wins her first title in nearly three years.

WTA Tour History

Who Won What Summary — Singles

The following list shows all active Tier II or higher titles and lists which of the top players have won them. The figures in the boxes show how many times the player has won each event and the year of her earliest win (e.g. by the Australian Open, in the column for Hingis, we see 3/97 — Hingis has won the Australian Open three times, starting in 1997). Looking at this list can give a measure both of a player's success (Davenport, e.g., has a lot of titles) and her weaknesses (but Davenport has big holes in the clay season)

Who Won What Summary — Doubles

The equivalent of the preceding, but for doubles. The list includes the Top Five (Raymond, Stubbs, Black, Likhovtseva, Tauziat), all Top Ten players with 12 or more career titles (Suarez, Sugiyama, Arendt), the remaining Top Thirty players with the best doubles records (Sanchez-Vicario, Hingis, Davenport, Kournikova), plus Zvereva as the active (?) doubles player with the best results and the Williams Sisters since they have the career Slam. Expired events are omitted.

Who Won What Part 3: 1986–1989

Order of events is (approximately) as in 1989. A major change in Tier schedule occurred between 1987 and 1988, with very many $150,000 events upgrading in the interim. In 1987, $150,000 was the equivalent of Tier II; in 1988, it was not. I have listed as Tier II events only those $150,000 events which upgraded in 1988 — but marked them in italics for 1987 (not previously). This list is cut off as of 1986/1987 because the Tour shifted to a Calendar Year system in 1986. Note that this resulted in many events not being played in 1986.

1. Partial year; see note on 1985–1986.
2. Until 1986, the Tour used a “tournament year” stretching from roughly March to March. In 1986, it switched to a calendar year form, explaining why many events are omitted (but not shown as unplayed) in 1986
3. The 1984/1985 season was 13 months long, including March 1985 and March 1986. One tournament — Dallas — was therefore played twice in that year, and not at all in the 1983/1984 season.
4. Reduced to a $50,000 tournament in 1985, coupled with a “4-woman special” won by Evert
5. Marco Island in 1986, with reduced prize money and an earlier date
6. The Italian Open was “in exile” 1980-1985, held in Taranto (with a $50,000 prize) in 1985, and in Perugia in 1984 and before (with a more normal $150,000 prize). It was not held in 1986 (not unusual given the realignment)
7. In some years (e.g. 1985), there were two Indianapolis events, perhaps on different surfaces. This is the larger
8. Held in Tokyo. Singles only; no doubles. Featured a third and fourth place playoff as well as winner and runner-up
9. Bonaventure in 1984; Deer Creek in 1983, with reduced prize money
10. Stuttgart until 1985
11. Held in Tokyo. Singles only; no doubles. Featured a third and fourth place playoff as well as winner and runner-up
12. Key Biscayne: Later Boca Raton
13. Held in Livingston in the 1983/1984 season
14. Dallas 1984/1985: Won by Mandlikova in March 1984 and by Navratilova in March 1985

Detailed Analysis — Career Tournaments for Davenport, Hingis, Seles, V. Williams

It's one thing to win tournaments. It's another to win a "spectrum" of tournaments — on all surfaces, in all countries. The following list shows all the major events currently played on the tour, and lists the years in which the top players won each.

Tournament	Tier	Won by Davenport	Won by Hingis	Won by Seles	Won by V. Williams

Total distinct events		19	21	18	9
Events won 2+ times		7	11	10	6

Notes: Events which are no longer played are not included in this list. In some cases, none of the above players ever won the event (e.g. none has won Hannover, which was last played in 2000). Davenport also won Chicago (II) in 1997; this was the last year that event was played. The Atlanta event was won by Davenport in 1997; it moved to New Haven in 1998. Davenport has also won several Tier III events: Lucerne 1993, Brisbane 1994, Lucerne 1994, Strasbourg 1995, Oklahoma City 1997, Madrid 1999. Hingis has two Tier III titles ('s-Hertogenbosch 2000; Doha 2001). Venus Williams won Oklahoma City in 1998, 1999. Monica Seles won Chicago (discontinued) in 1993; Essen (discontinued), Houston (discontinued), and Barcelona (discontinued) in 1992; Houston (discontinued), Milan (discontinued), and Tampa (discontinued) in 1991; and Houston (discontinued) in 1989. Seles won the U. S. Hardcourts (later Atlanta, later New Haven) in 1990 when it was in San Antonio.

Career Results for Leading Players

The following tables summarize the performances of certain top players, both current and recently retired. The criterion used is that a player must have retired since 1996, and must have, or be projected to have, at least 20 career singles titles. The table then attempts (probably with some inaccuracy) to break out a player's titles by year, surface, and tier. Tiers have been translated, to the extent possible, to the current Slam-Champ-I-II-III-IV-V system, even though the system has changed dramatically over the years (e.g. events now titled Tier II might have had prizes of $225,000 or $350,000 in the early Nineties; similarly, in the late Eighties the moneygap between Tier I and Tier II was only 3:2, compared to the 2:1 ratio of today. The list below does not represent the nomenclature at the time but what appears to me to be the best approximation to the nomenclature of today). Tournaments of Tier II or higher are shown in bold; lesser results in plain text.

Note: Here as elsewhere, events which do not follow WTA admission rules (Olympics, Fed Cup, Hopman Cup, Grand Slam Cup) are not listed. Since some (not all) WTA lists include the Olympics, their totals for Capriati, Davenport, Graf, and Venus Williams may be one tournament higher.

Slam History

Singles Slam Winners, Open Era

The following list shows, year by year, who won which Slams, and also shows the Open Era Slam Count for each player. (Note that some players, e.g. Court and King, have earlier Slams; these do not appear in the totals. Also, the Australian Open is always counted as the first Slam of the year even when it was actually the last, i.e. 1978-1985.) Multiple Slam winners shown in Bold

Grand Slams and Career Slams

A "Grand Slam" consists of winning all four Slams in a single year — a rare accomplishment indeed. A "Career Slam" consists of winning all four Slams at some time in one's career, though not all in one year. The following lists summarize the Career Slams for Women in the Open Era.

Grand Slams, Singles, Open Era[1]

Margaret Court, 1970
Steffi Graf, 1988[2]

Career Slams, Singles, Open Era[3]

Gigi Fernandez/Natasha Zvereva (14 Slams as a team)
Kathy Jordan/Anne Smith (4 Slams as a team)
Venus Williams/Serena Williams (4 Slams as a team)

---

1. Maureen Connolly also won a Grand Slam before the Open Era
2. Steffi Graf is the only player, man or woman, to win the singles Grand Slam in the four-surfaces era
3. Maureen Connolly, Doris Hart, and Shirley Fry had Career Slams before the Open Era. Billie Jean King won a Career Slam partly in the Open Era, but her only Australian Open title was pre-Open Era.
4. Maria Bueno also won a Grand Slam in doubles before the Open Era
5. Navratilova and Shriver are the only team to win a Grand Slam together in the Open Era
6. Hingis is the only player to win a multi-partner Grand Slam in the Open Era (Bueno did it before the Open Era)
7. Margaret Court and Judy Tegart Dalton won a Career Slam as a team, but their only Roland Garros title was before the Open Era

Strongest Career Rankings Showings

Based on the above statistics, we can produce a career "ranking of rankings." In the system below, one point is awarded for a year in which a player ends at #8. Two are awarded for #7, 3 for #6, 4 for #5, 6 for #4, 8 for #3, 12 for #2, and 16 for #1.

Note: for purposes of reckoning, Monica Seles is omitted from the rankings for 1995, but is treated as #2 for 1996, with all players below her demoted one position.

Titles With Multiple Partners, Single Year, Open Era

According to the WTA, only 7 players have won doubles titles with five or more partners in a yearin the WTA Era.* The following lists these players, their partners, and the number of titles with each partner.*

of Partners	Player	Year	Partners & Title Count
6	Helena Sukova	1993	Sanchez-Vicario (3), G. Fernandez (1), M. J. Fernandez (1), Navratilova (1), Stubbs (1), Smylie (1)
6	A. Sanchez-Vicario	1994	Novotna (5), Neiland (2), Davenport (1), Halard (1), McGrath (1), McNeil (1),
5	Pam Shriver	1989	Navratilova (4), K. Adams (1), Graf (1), Mandlikova (1), Nagelson (1)
5	Mercedes Paz	1989	Bollegraf (1), Goles (1), Scheuer-Larsen (1), Tarabini (1), Wiesner (1)
5	Larisa Neiland	1994	Bollegraf (1), Garrison-Jackson (1), McGrath (1), Sanchez-Vicario (1), Stubbs (1)
5	A. Sanchez-Vicario	1996	Novotna (4), Rubin (2), Neiland (1), Schultz-McCarthy (1), Spirlea (1)
5	Martina Hingis	1997	Sanchez-Vicario (3), Novotna (2), Davenport (1), M. J. Fernandez (1), Zvereva (1)
5	Natasha Zvereva	1997	Davenport (2), G. Fernandez (2), Sanchez-Vicario (2), Hingis (1), Sukova (1)

* The WTA list for this statistic is extremely inaccurate — it omits Neiland, gets Sanchez-Vicario's record wrong, and shows Paz with only four titles in 1989; I discovered her result with Tarabini by accident. This is a corrected list, but may be incomplete.

Slams With the Most Partners, Open Era

The following list shows all women who have won Slams with four or more partners in the Open Era, listing the partners and the number of Slams with each*.

Total Partners	Player	Partners & Slams
9	Martina Navratilova	Shriver (20), King (3), Evert (2), A. Smith (1), G. Fernandez (1) Mandlikova (1), Nagelson (1), Stove (1), Temesvari (1)
6	Martina Hingis	Novotna (3), Kournikova (1), Lucic (1), Pierce (1), Sukova (1), Zvereva (1)
5	Jana Novotna	Sukova (4), Hingis (3), Sanchez-Vicario (3), Davenport (1), G. Fernandez (1)
4	Natasha Zvereva	G. Fernandez (14), Savchenko Neiland (2), Hingis (1), Shriver (1)
4	Gigi Fernandez	Zvereva (14), Navratilova (1), Novotna (1), White (1)
4	Margaret Court	Tegart Dalton (4), Wade (4), Bueno (1), Goolagong (1)
4	Helena Sukova	Novotna (4), Kohde-Kilsch (2), Sanchez-Vicario (2), Hingis (1)
4	Francoise Durr	Chanfreau (2), A. Jones (2), Hard (1), Stove (1)
4	Betty Stove	King (2), Turnbull (2), Durr (1), Navratilova (1)
4	H. Gourlay Cawley	Balestrat (1), Goolagong (1), Harris (1), Russell (1)

* Note: Billie Jean King won titles with 5 players, but only three in the Open Era: Casals (5), Navratilova (4), Stove (1). Counting wins before the Open Era, Court won with 7 players: The above plus Ebbern, Reitano, and Turner.

Comings and Goings: On and Off the Rankings

The following lists compare the ranking tables for 2000 and 2001, noting how many players have been added and subtracted. Note that this is not the same as the number of players who have turned pro or retired. Some players may go off the rankings because of injuries, others may reappear because they have recovered from injuries. And some have changed their names, and so will disappear from one list to reappear on the other (I have corrected some of these, e.g. Liezel Horn became Huber. But there are bound to be some low-ranked players I've missed). But this gives a general overview of how the numbers of ranked players has changed. Overall, the number of players is increasing, but the increase is not constant — there were 1079 ranked players at the end of the season in 1999; in 2000 there were 1242, an increase of 15%. But in 2001 the number fell again, to 1212. Note: The totals for the years don't quite add up; there are two missing players. I assume it has something to do with my algorithm for identifying who is or isn't the same player.

Players ranked in 2000 but not in 2001 (total of 309): Julia Abe, Erica Adams, Geraldine Aizenberg, Maria Lore Alcetegaray, Estef Aldana Estremera, Denitsa Alexandrova, Jenny Andrade, Liza Andriyani, Anna Anikanova, Sabine Appelmans, Maria Jose Argeri, Carla Arguelles, Sunthree Arphanukul, Marcela Arroyo, Bettina Auer, Patricia Aznar, Meike Babel, Patrycja Bandurowska, Anne Banffy, Catherine Barclay, Fiona Barrett, Dina Basil, Yayuk Basuki, Kristy Bayer, Beatriz Becker, Kaur Harsimran Bedi, Petra Begerow, Eva Belbl, Nathalia Bellizia, Ma.
